Coal Panel Report Hints Compromise On Pay Issue

Basic Increase Apparently Out But 6-Day Week Is Seemingly Favored

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

The War Labor Board yesterday received the report of its bituminous coal panel which apparently ruled out an increase in basic pay rates for the Nation's soft-coal miners because of the "Little Steel" formula, but seemed to leave the door open for a compromise adjustment of the demand for "portal to portal" pay and other concessions to the United Mine Workers.

Ordered by the board to refrain from making recommendations, the three-man "fact finding" panel left the full board free to act "on the merits" as it saw fit in its 45-page report.

Drops Broad Hints

However, informed officials who emphasized that the board was not bound by any conclusions indicated in the report, stated that the report dropped some broad hints which seemed to provide some justification for the following possible actions:

1. Strengthening of Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes recent order for mandatory six-day operation of the mines by guaranteeing miners one day's work at time and a half every week even if mine breakdowns and other factors make full six-day operation impossible. The panel pointed out that this practice is followed by the shipbuilding industry.

2. Granting of demands to increase vacation pay from the present level of $20 a year to $50 a year.

3. Payment of occupational charges which the report stated were a "holdover" from previous methods of mine operation. These include charges for carbide lamps, estimated by the panel at 3 cents a day, blacksmithing charges which part of the country's 450,000 soft coal miners pay—estimated at 65 cents a month, and charges for safety hats and work shoes estimated at $13 a year.

Three Interests Represented

The three-man panel consists of Morris L. Cooke, representing the public; David B. Robertson, representing labor, and Walter White, representing industry. Although the report was unanimous, White filed supplementary comments on some of the wage questions.

Meanwhile, John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W., was reported to have returned to Washington to be in a better position to observe the progress of the case and to follow his petition for reaffiliation with the American Federation of Labor. Lewis has repeatedly defied the War Labor Board by refusing to participate in its consideration of the coal dispute.

Main Demand Seen Rejected

Observers interpreted the panel report as ruling out the main demand advanced by Lewis—a $2-a-day increase for the miners because of application of the "Little Steel" formula.

The report pointed out that the miners in the Northern Appalachian region had received a pay increase from a minimum of $6 a day to $7 a day in April, 1941, and that the Southern group had been boosted from $5.60 a day to $7. The Northern increase amounted to 16 2-3 per cent while the Southern increase amounted to 25 per cent, the panel pointed out. The "Little Steel" formula only authorized an increase of 15 per cent as an allowance of "maladjustments" in the cost of living since January 1, 1941.

Support for a liberal interpretation of wage-control policies to permit the other adjustments was provided by the comment, "Nothing in a democracy tends to stir up more resentment against even wise and necessary rules than their arbitrary and wooden enforcement."

It was expected that the board would give Lewis another opportunity to end his defiance by invit-

Fireman Suspended In Sale of Spuds; 11 Warrants Issued

By Linton Burkett
Post Staff Writer

Five grocers were arrested last night on alleged OPA potato price ceiling violations as the Commissioners suspended a District fireman for selling potatoes on Fire Department property and local dealers predicted a continuance of the famine here.

The men arrested on warrants from the District Attorney and the bond and collateral they posted were; Jacob Miller, 7350 Georgia Avenue Northwest, $300 bond; Morris Rubin, 1357 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, $500 bond; Louis Cosberg of 2132 Florida Avenue Northwest, $25 collateral; George Steven Maier of 2200 Minnesota Avenue Southeast, $500 bond, and James A. Paterson of 233 Upshur Street Northwest, $500 bond.

A total of 11 warrants were issued by the District Attorney's office, it was revealed. More of them will be served today.

Pvt. Joseph C. Reynolds, fireman with No. 19 Engine Company, Twenty-eighth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, was suspended "until further notice" by order of the District Commissioners yesterday.

Reynolds was suspended pending the outcome of a trial board hearing, the date of which has not been set. His suspension was recommended by Fire Chief Stephen S. Porter after Porter had received reports of an investigation of the potato selling.

A reporter for The Post bought 10 pounds of old potatoes from a truck, which was parked on the apron of the firehouse, at 10 cents a pound, or almost double ceiling prices. In addition, a Post photographer took a picture of the truck and firehouse.

Onions are expected to join potatoes in the limbo of forgotten things in Washington next week, Samuel A. Freas, big wholesale produce dealer, said yesterday. The corn is of an undesirable quality for table consumption and he is unable to sell it, he says. The famine will last three weeks until a new crop comes in, he predicted.

'No-Strike' Vow Given Here By A.F.L. Chief

Pledge Is Made At Rally; Wounded Marines Also Speak

A "no-strike" pledge rang from the lips of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, last night at Consittution Hall as another speaker, Sergt. Al Schmid, nearly blind Marine, told of seeing his buddy get 15 machine gun bullets in the face and the sergeant then having to hobble on a wounded leg to eat three tablespoonsful of rice on Guadalcanal.

The occasion was the Labor for Victory Rally sponsored by the Washington Central Labor Union.

Barney Ross Speaks

And then there was Marine Sergt. Barney Ross, former lightweight and welterweight boxing champion, now a fighting Marine, who pleaded with the people who make the weapons of war to keep those weapons flowing to the front and "when we get everything we need this war will be short-lived."

Tough fighting talk came from the former champion, who was wounded by shrapnel on Guadalcanal, as he told of the trials of the fighting men of the Marines and other armed forces.

Ovations came from the audience at the appearance of these two fighter-heroes. The orchestra honored Schmid with the Marine Hymn and Ross with flourishes of trumpets.

And then, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson told of the achievement of A. F. L. members in building a Flying Fortress in 27,000 man-hours instead of the 110,000 formerly required.

Patterson also pledged that as the exigencies of war forced shifts in production and consequently shifts in workmen, reason for the moves would be given the workers as far as military secrecy may allow.

Cites Production Rise

He also told the assemblage that while there had been reductions in some certain items produced, the over-all production had increased and it will have to increase more and more to meet schedules.

Speeches of Patterson and Green were broadcast, although the broadcast of Green's talk was limited to his introduction of Patterson.

Green's pledge that the American Federation of Labor would adhere to its policy of forbidding strikes during the war followed by two days the announcement that John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, had asked that his union come back under the wing of the A. F. of L.

Levee Breaks Drive 100,000 From Homes

Floods in Midwest Cover Thousands Of Acres; Loss To Run in Millions

By the Associated Press

A dozen breaks in levees along the Mississippi, Illinois and Wabash Rivers spewed flood waters over thousands of acres of fertile Midwestern farm land yesterday, but several cities were saved from the threat of immediate inundation.

With more than 100,000 persons homeless and losses running into many millions and mounting hourly, refugees left danger zones by car and boat, while soldiers and civilians bulwarked dikes against the onrush of cresting currents.

The Illinois River was on the rise along a 200-mile stretch from Peru to Grafton, Ill.; the Mississippi was inching up along a similar length from Grafton to Cape Girardeau, Mo.; the Missouri was expanding on the homestretch of its sweep to the Mississippi.

5400 Soldiers on Duty

More than 400 families and 2000 head of livestock were evacuated—some by boat and barge—from the Illinois side of the Mississippi between St. Louis and Cairo, Ill. In that sector 3400 troops labored to protect settlements and rail lines. Levees were breached at Stringtown, Fort Chartres, Degonia, Fountain Bluff and Grand Tower.

A total of 5400 soldiers were on flood duty.

The Red Cross estimated 24,337 families—about 96,000 persons—were homeless in Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Kansas. With 12,000 Indianans also routed, the six-State total approximated 108,000 persons.

The organization reported 1,056,961 acres were submerged, and 8665 homes were damaged or ruined.

In Illinois alone, it added, 10,000 families were homeless.

The Illinois River, meanwhile, rose higher and higher, with forecasts of expected crests indicating the worst was yet to come.

Illinois Rising Steadily

The river lapped up to 27.6 feet at Beardstown, Ill.—an all-time record—but dropped a half foot after the Coal Creek drainage district levee broke, and the water gushed across 7000 acres of basin land.

Upstream, at the busy industrial city of Peoria, the Illinois reached 26.8 feet, the highest in 99 years, and a crest of 28.3 was expected Monday.

Two big storage tanks, containing 5000 gallons of gasoline and fuel oil, were toppled by the surging water at East Peoria. Below Peoria, three levees—two near Havana and one near Frederick—gave way.

The overflow invaded part of the business district in Alton, Ill., on the Mississippi. Downstream, Grand Tower, Ill., was flooded for the first time since 1844. New Athens, Ill., on the Kaskaskia River, experienced its worst flood, with 4 feet of water in the shopping section.

In neighboring Missouri, troops, State guardsmen and civilians were beaten in their battle against the inroads of the Missouri River.

The peak of the Wabash River flood reached Vincennes, Ind., but the historic Indiana city apparently was saved from inundation by breaks in the levee on the Illinois side. Some 44,000 acres were submerged.

Japanese Forces Hopelessly Trapped; Drive on Kiska May Be Next

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Secretary Knox pronounced the battle for Attu Island won last night, declaring that only "mopping up" operations remained against the cornered Japanese forces.

"The enemy is now encircled, surrounded, on that little peninsula," he told reporters. "It is only a question of time until they either will be liquidated or surrender."

He was asked if this meant the battle was "to all intents and purposes over." Nodding, the Navy Chief replied:

"It's a successful operation. It is a mopping-up process now."

Won't Take Long, Belief

Military men here believed that it would not take long to stamp out the last enemy resistance, particularly if the weather clears up sufficiently for our air forces to operate. Bombers and fighter planes from Amchitka could wipe out the remaining Japs entrenched on Chichagof Harbor if they can see where to shoot and drop their explosives.

But the remnants of the 3000 to 4000 man garrison believed to have been on the westernmost Aleutian Island are doomed. Our troops are in full control of the rest of the island and free to go ahead and complete its partially built airfield.

Then the second step of the move to expel the Japs from the Aleutians can begin. This could either be done by an immediate amphibious attack on Kiska Island or by starving and bombing it into impotence, so that a later occupation would be made easier.

Possibly 10,000 Men on Kiska

Kiska is Japan's main base in the Aleutians and is believed to have a garrison of perhaps 10,000 men. Asked about the prospects of action against this island, Secretary Knox said he "could not comment on future operations."

Asked about Axis reports that the Japs were evacuating their men from Attu, the Secretary said he doubted very seriously that anything like this was possible.

"We control the sea approaches to the island," he added.

Knox compared the present situation on Attu with that in Tunisia after Bizerte and Tunis had fallen and the remaining Nazis and Italians were trapped on Cap Bon Peninsula. The victory had been won, but some fighting continued.

Earlier in the day the Navy issued a communique reporting on action on Attu Wednesday. The Japs, it was revealed, were entrenched on high ground east of Attu Village. Our bombers had attacked the cornered enemy forces north of Sarana Bay, it was said.

The communique also reported an attack on our base on Guadalcanal in the Solomons Wednesday night by eight Jap bombers. Minor damage was caused, while two of

Before the Home Folks

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, May 21.—More than 113 Axis planes were destroyed by American bombers and fighters yesterday in widespread raids which carried Allied aerial superiority far across the Mediterranean, over the Italian satellite islands and to an airdrome 90 miles north of Rome on one of the blackest days of the war for the Axis air forces.

The Allied loss for the day was one plane.

Powerfully armed United States bombers and swift fighters in "one of the greatest victory days in the history of the strategic air force," as the official version put it, thus ran up a two-day toll of 186 Axis planes against a loss of five Allied craft in the same period.

The previous day 73 German and Italian planes were destroyed against the loss of four Allied aircraft.

With the two-day score standing at 186-to-5 for our side, the strategic air force was showing no signs of letting the Axis catch its breath after the beating which destroyed Axis air power in Africa.

22 Shot Down

Observers saw in the new success a continuing, fierce onslaught and confirmation of the tremendous growth in the power of the Allied air arm in Africa, which now is able to follow the Germans and Italians to their continent and beat them in view of the homefolks.

A half dozen types of bombers and fighters participated in yesterday's slaughter, in which 91 enemy planes were wrecked and burned on the ground and 22 shot down in aerial combat.

An Allied communique said seven of the bag were six-engined troop and freight-carrying Messerburg-323s such as were destroyed in scores off Tunisia in the latter stages of the North African campaign.

The day's greatest destruction was done by the Flying Fortresses, of Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's strategic force, in an attack on Grosseto Airdrome, 90 miles north of Rome. Photographs showed that 58 of 59 enemy aircraft parked there were destroyed in a high-altitude precision raid that also left hangars, administration buildings and runways a shambles. Of the 58 destroyed, 53 were either

Bulk of Force Is in Pacific, Roosevelt Says

Remark Doesn't Apply To Aerial Strength, President Admits

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt said yesterday that the bulk of America's overseas forces, except air units, was in the Pacific theater of the war.

The President made this disclosure at his press conference when he was asked about a passage in Prime Minister Winston Churchill's speech before Congress, in which the eloquent Briton said:

"The major part of the United States force is now deployed on the Pacific Front . . ."

That, said the President, was very definitely true. It was absolutely true of Army and Navy forces outside of continental United States, he said, adding that American air strength in the Pacific was very nearly equal to that in other theaters.

It had been generally assumed that the larger part of the Navy was in the Pacific, but the President's disclosure that the same was true of the Army's overseas forces was something of a surprise.

However, what has caused most of the controversy in the employment of America's might has been the apportionment of air strength. It is not so long ago that Gen. Douglas MacArthur sent a mission to Washington to plead for a larger share of planes. The impression created then was that the Pacific—at least the Southwest Pacific—was getting only a fraction of this country's aircraft production.

Asked for a progress report on his conferences with Prime Minister Churchill and the Anglo-American strategists, the President told newspapermen that so far most of the work had been done by the combined staffs.

He said he and Churchill were to get together last night and receive some tentative recommendations made by their top-ranking

Tokyo Broadcasts News; He Hated America Bitterly

By the Associated Press

Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the Japanese navy, author of the Pearl Harbor attack and the man who once boasted he would dictate peace terms in the White House, was killed last month in air combat on some far southern front, Tokyo announced yesterday.

Emperor Hirohito ordered a state funeral and raised him posthumously to the rank of admiral of the fleet. The Imperial Diet (Parliament) was called into session for today to pay its respects. Tokyo broadcasts told of nation-wide mourning.

Despite the defeats suffered by his command in the Coral Sea, off Midway and in the Solomons, the 59-year-old Yamamoto was this wars' greatest hero to the Japanese people, to whom the defeats were reported as victories.

He probably was the No. 1 enemy of the United States, both in the bitterness of his hate and the damage he inflicted on American armed forces. Even a tour of duty in Washington in 1936 as naval attache failed to decrease his hatred. He was rated Japan's ablest sea fighter. If he died in action, as Tokyo says, he was the highest ranking officer of any of the belligerents to meet such a death in this war.

Koga Is Successor

A voice choked with emotion read this imperial headquarters communique to the nation:

"Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the combined fleet, gallantly met death aboard a warplane which engaged in an encounter with the enemy while directing general strategic operations during April this year.

"Admiral Mineichi Koga, who has been appointed Yamamoto's successor, is now commanding the combined fleet."

A subsequent broadcast said Yamamoto died "on the very front lines of the south," indicating a locale somewhere over the long arc of islands north of Australia, from Timor to the Solomons. There were heavy air combats over the Solomons early in April, others over New Guinea in the middle of the month.

Mrs. Eula Smith has been released from a House Military Affairs subpoena despite her refusal to testify to a subcommittee about her connection with war contracts, or about the big red house at 2101 R Street Northwest, which she rented.

Military Affairs Chairman May (Democrat) of Kentucky said yesterday that the subpoena for Mrs. Smith had been withdrawn, as had that of John P. Monroe, who rented a floor of the R Street house for him and his family and who was its host at dinner parties for the famous.

"We decided that Monroe had done nothing wrong within our jurisdiction, which is the investigation of war contracts," May said. "And we decided not to annoy Mrs. Smith about it."

G.O.P. Tax Leaders Maneuver For New Vote on Ruml Plan

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Undismayed by three defeats, Republican tax leaders maneuvered yesterday for a fourth House vote on the Ruml skip-a-year tax plan approved by the Senate, in the apparent belief that a joint conference committee will abandon today efforts to find some other plan that might receive a warmer welcome at the White House.

President Roosevelt has sent to the Capitol letters which Democratic tax leaders took to mean that he would veto the Ruml tax plan. Republicans, inspecting the letters, found no sign of the word "veto" in them, and promptly denied that the President intended anything more than the statement that he would not sign a Ruml bill—leaving the way open for it to become law without his signature. Inability to agree on what the President had or had not said, or intended to say, proved a stumbling block yesterday. The President was understood to have told Speaker Rayburn by phone that he would veto the Ruml bill. Ruml backers remained unconvinced.

Representative Knutson (Republican) of Minnesota, leader of his party's campaign for the Ruml plan, and one of the conferees, said that he had every intention of seeking another vote on the Ruml plan if the conference reaches a stalemate.

"We can't afford to break down these negotiations," said Knutson. "The people want to be placed on a pay-as-you-earn system. If we are unable to reach an agreement the only thing to do is to return to the House for further instructions."

Knutson said that in its three appearances on the House floor, the Ruml plan as contained in the bill by Representative Carlson (Republican) of Kansas had received at various times the votes of 221 members or a clear majority of the House. At least once by 17 votes, one by 4, and last Tuesday by 8 votes.

"The Republican conferees have no alternative except to insist on the Ruml-Carlson bill," Knutson declared.

After two days of failure to find a compromise, backers of the Ruml plan had clearly gained the upper hand in the parliamentary see-saw between the two Houses. The Senate had approved the Ruml plan 49 to 30, but if the conference collapses, the issue would first go back to the House. There failure to have found a compromise might prove a bargaining point for the Ruml supporters in their fourth

Sales for Post's War Bond Game Soar Past Million-Dollar Mark

To facilitate war bond sales to persons seeking tickets to Monday night's war bond game, The Washington Post and Griffith Stadium have been designated as issuing agencies by the United States Treasury Department.

Because the city's banks and postoffices, where game tickets are issued hand in hand with bond purchases, will be closed tomorrow, bond-buying windows will be open tomorrow in The Post Building lobby and at the ball park.

The Post's war bond baseball show, featuring the crack Norfolk Naval Station team against the Washington club, with Bing Crosby and Kate Smith making home plate appearances, has resulted in a rush for seats, which are limited to bond buyers.

Bond windows will be open in The Post Building tomorrow from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Bonds will be sold at Griffith Stadium during the same hours.

At both places, bond buyers will need only to go to a second window to convert exchange tickets received along with their bonds, into reserved seats.

The goal of a million-dollar gate, set by The Post with the announcement of the game, already has been surpassed, with the prospect that final figures will show more than $1,500,000 worth of bonds sold.

Still available to bond buyers, however, are thousands of choice seats of the $50 value in the grandstands, the $25 value in the pavillions and bleachers and a limited number of $1000 box seats. Every seat in the stadium is a reserved seat.

Beyond the purchase of a bond, there is no further cost to the ticket buyer, with all seats tax exempt.

Persons receiving tickets from any bank or postoffice in connection with bond purchases, may exchange them at The Post Building or Griffith Stadium during the day for reserved seats.

New 'Superbomber' to Join Air Offensive, Wilson Says

By Sterling F. Green
Associated Press Staff Writer

A new "super bomber," to join the Flying Fortresses and Liberators in smashing at the Axis, is scheduled for production, Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the War Production Board, said yesterday.

Aside from the barest reference to the craft in a statement on aircraft production made at a press conference, Wilson smilingly shied away from giving any details on the new air monster or when it would be in action.

The first hint of the giant bombers came several months ago from Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, who in a speech said, "We have a secret weapon or two up our aerial sleeves that will deal paralyzing blows to our enemies." Then, referring to the aerial program, he said that "entirely new 'battlewagons' are on the way."

Wilson said a new aircraft plant at Marietta, Ga., which he described as "another Willow Run in size, would be in partial production this fall and "in good heavy production by the spring of 1944."

The plant will assemble planes and will "manufacture a large number of parts itself," Wilson said. He added that he believed its floor space would be "around 4,500,000 square feet."

The reference to the new air weapon came in connection with Wilson's statement that output of heavy bombers in April was four times greater than production one year ago, and by next April would be eight times greater.

On the basis of previously announced April production in excess of 500 heavy bombers, this would mean more than 1000 heavy

Nazis Now Rushing Defenses of Dams

Unofficial Opinion

All-Out Air Drive Likely Soon

By Rice Yahner
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, May 21.—The aerial knockout experiment is expected by unofficial observers to begin within a few days, when British-based big bombers rejoin the general attack in which the strategic air force in North Africa has just scored one of its greatest victories.

These observers can find no reason-beyond the preparations for a renewed home-based R. A. F. offensive—for the fact that the R. A. F. fleet of four-engine front-line bombers should have been kept grounded through more than a week of the "bombers' moon."

They speculate that the R. A. F. may be engaged in an immense amount of overhauling and planning needed to keep a gigantic assault going throughout the summer.

They foresee the possibility that the new assault might begin with unprecedented attacks on Berlin or northern Italy to demonstrate the Allies' ability to carry out the knockout "experiment" suggested by Prime Minister Churchill in Washington Wednesday and enthusiastically seconded yesterday by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Sinclair Optimistic

Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair said in a speech underscoring Churchill's knockout threat today that the Allies now are able to obtain a sufficient number of bombers to destroy "the sources of German war power."

Declaring that Berlin is the only place where the war can be ended, Sinclair said that there is "only one way of getting to Berlin without the slaughter which the land battles of the last war entailed, and that is the paralysis of the German war power."

"All that we now require to destroy the sources of the German war power is large numbers of British and American bombers," he declared.

Soviets Fear Postponement

(Associated Press Correspondent Eddy Gilmore reported from Moscow that the Russian people welcomed Churchill's announcement but that many of them felt it might mean a postponement of the second front.

(Hope for the establishment of a second front is foremost in Russian appraisal of British-American war strategy, The Soviet Press, which gives the Russian people full accounts of the current bombings of Germany and Italy, printed Churchill's address fully, but without editorial comment.)

Except for the sensational dambusting feat which required only 19 planes for a highly specialized mission early this week, there has been no heavy R. A. F. blow struck from the British bases against the Axis since the scattered attacks on the Ruhr and Czecho-Slovakia the night of May 13.

The United States Army Air Force has continued to batter Nazi Europe in daylight but, although it was disclosed this week that it has been substantially reinforced, it cannot yet equal the R. A. F.'s heavyweight fleet in either numbers or bombload.

Success of R.A.F. Raid Seen Causing Reported Activity

By the Associated Press

London, May 21.—Shocked by the success of the R. A. F.'s one-night smashing of the Moehne and Eder Dams, Germans were reported today rushing antiaircraft protection and protecting nets for their remaining big dams, particularly Bleiloch Dam and power station which feeds the Leuna Nitrogen and Fertilizer Works and other industries.

In retaliation for the R. A. F. feat, the Gestapo was massacring the entire populations in the ghettos of Krakow and Stanislawow, the Polish government in exile said.

The News was said to have come from the secret Polish radio station SWIT. The report said many were shot down in the streets or their homes or were slain in huge gas chambers. First reports said that the attacks on the dams had been suggested by a Jewish refugee from Germany, but the Air Ministry denied this.

Bleiloch, Germany's greatest dam, produces 250 million kilowatt hours of power yearly. Located on the Saale River near Saalfeld, 60 miles southwest of Leipzig, it is well within bomber range of England.

Importance of Dams

The Ministry of Economic Warfare has estimated that 25 per cent of German electricity is produced by water power. Most big industries have independent electric power plants to fall back on if other power sources fail.

Germany has about 80 fairly large dams and power plants along the Rhine, Ruhr, Eder, Main, Eser, Neckar and Murg Rivers, but the largest and most important, and presumably on the R. A. F.'s list as possible targets are:

1. Bleiloch.
2. Walchensee, near the Austrian border south of Munich. The water flowing from the Walchen Lake into Kochel Lake is the source of power. There are many smaller dams and power stations in this area, some of them feeding industries in northern Italy.
3. Bober Dam, on the Bober River in Silesia. This is only about one-tenth the size of the Eder Dam, but its power station feeds several Silesian industries.
4. Murgtal, on the Murg River in southern Germany near the Swiss border.

Cologne a Nerve Center

The nerve center of the electric power system in western Europe is at Braweiler near Cologne. Here through an intricate switchboard system power can be diverted from one district to another in the event of local failure.

A source with a good background of Germany's power set-up who is now in Britain said that the R. A. F. could seriously damage German industries by knocking out the Bleiloch, Walchensee and Murgtal Dams and power stations, thus forcing the Germans to switch over plants to full dependence upon coal.

Executons After Raids

Bern, Switzerland, May 21 (AP).—German reports said today that five persons were executed by the Reich the day after the Moehne and Eder dams were breached by the R. A. F.'s aerial mine attack. There were reports here that the British fliers had been aided by signalling.

Thousands of Allied Troops Stage Victory Parade in Tunis

By William B. King
Associated Press Staff Writer

Tunis, May 21.—The men who won Tunisia from the Axis legions paraded in massed glory today before their commanding generals and thousands of cheering civilians who became free again when Tunis fell.

Twenty-eight thousand men put a ceremonious seal on the Allied African victory in a march through Tunis with formal salutes to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Henri Giraud.

Americans, British, French—brown Spahis on horseback, black-bereted Englishmen in Sherman tanks, khaki uniformed Americans and red-fezzed French colonial troops.

Eisenhower and Giraud took the eyes right salute from the victorious soldiers who fought and won on the African battlefields from the Libyan sands to the rolling Tunis plain. They stood on the bunting-draped dias with British Gens. Sir Harold Alexander and K. A. N. Anderson; French Gens. Georges Catroux and Alphonse Juin, Vice Admiral H. E. Hewitt of the United States Navy Mediterranean command; British Air Marshals Sir Arthur W. Tedder and Sir Arthur Coningham and Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander in chief of the British Mediterranean Fleet.

Civilian representatives on the reviewing stand were Robert Murphy, United States Minister to French North Africa, and Harold McMillan, British resident minister at Allied headquarters in North Africa.

In the commander in chief's group were Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., and Maj. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the Second U. S. Army Corps. They watched the parade from a special stand with French dignitaries, including the Archbishop of Tunis.

bombers or transports.

A headquarters spokesman described it as "some of the finest precision bombing of the war." Twelve out of 25 Italian three-engined bombers were blasted into junk at the Milas Airdrome on Sardinia.

At least a dozen more enemy planes on the ground at the Milas Airdrome were ripped by shrapnel.

A joint British and American aerial communique disclosed that a total of 5172 Axis planes were shot down in air combats in the Mediterranean area between the entrance of Italy into the war on June 10, 1940, and the collapse of the enemy in Tunisia this month. Of these 1757 were destroyed in the northwestern African campaign since the Allied landing last November.

Lightning fighters fitted with bombs ranged the length of the big island of Sardinia, blasting bridges, trains and barracks. Mitchell medium bombers with Lightning escorts raided Villacidro Airdrome northwest of Cagliari, destroying seven planes on the ground. Their twin-engined escorts shot down 7 of 12 enemy fighters that challenged them.

Allied Air Raiders Reported Hitting Big Dam in Sardinia

London, May 21 (AP).—A Reuters dispatch which quoted N. B. C. said today Allied air raiders scored direct hits yesterday on a power dam in central Sardinia, recalling the R. A. F. breaching of Germany's Moehne and Eder dams Sunday night.

The great Tirso dam, which may have been an Allied target, is in central Sardinia on the largest artificial lake in Europe, Reuters said, describing it as about twice the size of the quarter-mile-long Eder dam. It was not brought out whether the dam attacked was actually breached.

Americans Blast Japs in Burma In Heavy Raids

New Delhi, May 21 (AP).—American heavy and medium bombers splattered Japanese supply lines and installations in Burma with more than 200,000 pounds of explosives yesterday in the third such heavy assault in as many days, while three R. A. F. formations continued to pound away at other regions.

A communique describing the offensive action said medium bombers struck at factories, warehouses and a sawmill at Monywa and Myingen, scoring direct hits on all targets.

Heavy bombers exploded a cement plant at Thayetmo, Yenangyaung, Prome warehouses and Allanmyo.

All aircraft and crews returned safely, it was announced.

Rooming House Owner Fined $200

James Yager, Negro rooming house operator of 1012 Fourth Street Southwest, was fined $200 in Municipal Court yesterday for operating four rooming houses without proper bath facilities and without licenses. All four of the houses are in the 500 block of Nineteenth Street Northwest.

Yager, who testified that he was the manager of some 30 other rooming houses, also will be tried May 26 for 27 health violations.

Andrews Sees Early End of U-Boat Peril

New York, May 21 (AP).—Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the Eastern sea frontier, said today that "with additional escorts, planes and blimps which are now being delivered," the United States should have the submarine menace under control within the next six months.

Dozen 'Forts' Lost as Yanks Aim Twin Assault at Germany

By the Associated Press

London, May 21.—Two "strong" formations of American Flying Fortresses smashed their way unescorted through heavy concentrations of enemy fighters and anti-aircraft fire today to attack the submarine yards at Emden and Wilhelmshaven, Germany's North Sea naval bases, in separate daylight raids.

"Despite very strong enemy fighter opposition and intense flak," an Eighth United States Air Force communique said, the twin assaults "were pressed home, and a large weight of bombs" was dropped.

Twelve of the big four-engined bombers failed to come back from the dual operation to smash the vital German U-boat construction yards at the two port cities. Emden is about 330 airline miles from London and Wilhelmshaven is about 40 miles farther.

Many of the enemy fighters which challenged the well-armed American heavyweights were destroyed in the numerous combats which ensued, the communique said.

Fliers returning from the Wilhelmshaven raid said they fought a terrific battle with 100 to 150 enemy planes.

The sky over Wilhelmshaven seemed full of Focke-Wulf 190's and Messerschmitt 109's which flew recklessly through the tight formations of Fortresses, the airmen reported.

While the Fortresses were pounding northwestern Germany for the second time in three day P-47 Thunderbolts again patrolled the coast of Nazi-occupied Holland in force. The fighters also bumped into enemy planes which brought down three P-47's, the communique said. It added that "some Focke-Wulfs were hit, although their destruction was not confirmed."

R. A. F. mosquito bombers struck at Berlin last night for the second consecutive night and dropped bombs on Bremen and Essen and other targets in Germany and occupied territory.

(An indication that the German capital might be getting its third straight nightly visit from the R. A. F. came in a report from the Federal Communications Commission that Deutschlandsender, Germany's largest domestic radio station, had announced it would be off the air for some time.)

Today's raid on Emden, the second in a week, was made by a Fortress wing commanded by Brig. Gen. Frederick Anderson which made its debut in the bombing of Kiel Wednesday.

Soviet Guns Open Heavy Barrage

Berlin Declares Russians Are Ready To Launch Drives in Orel, Caucasus Sectors

By James M. Long
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Saturday), May 22.—Heavy Russian artillery barrages along hundreds of miles of the eastern front were announced early today in a Moscow communique which ignored German reports that the Red Army already had lashed out in a prelude to offensives in the Caucasus and Orel sectors.

The midnight bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor said merely that Russian troops "consolidated their lines and exchanged artillery fire with the enemy" northeast of Novorossisk in the Caucasus.

Berlin broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press said the Red Army had "concentrated strong offensive forces on the whole Kuban front in order to capture the German-Rumanian bridgehead." The German radio commentator added "it is believed here the Soviet attack against the Kuban bridgehead will start at the same time as the expected Soviet offensive south of Moscow."

Another Berlin broadcast heard by Reuters last night said the Russians already had launched attacks in the Lisichansk and Slavyansk areas of the Donets Basin, presumably as forerunners to heavier pushes in the Orel region to the north.

While the midnight bulletin omitted mention of the Donets Basin front southeast of Kharkov, one Moscow broadcast last night said Russian troops had captured an important hill south of Izyum. The noon bulletin yesterday also announced minor fighting at Lisichansk.

chief, is 58. Was chief of naval forces in China waters in 1941-1942, took a leading role in the seizure of Hongkong and the Philippines and recently had commanded Yokosuka, Japan's largest home naval base.

Suicide Held Possible

Tokyo radio's various announcements on the death were recorded by the Associated Press and the Federal Communications Commission.

Some American naval men in Washington expressed skepticism concerning the Tokyo version of Yamamoto's end. They said his forces had met so many reverses in recent months that he might have committed hara kiri; it also was possible that he died a natural death.

In either case, it was pointed out, the high command almost certainly would have dressed up his demise with heroic trappings to keep alive the legend of his success as a factor for national morale.

Other observers were doubtful of the hara-kiri theory; reports that other Japanese commanders killed themselves have lacked confirmation and have drawn Japanese denials.

Air Actions Listed

American communiques recorded the following air or sea actions during April, in any of which, if the Japanese version is correct, Yamamoto may have died perhaps the victim of some youthful American fighter who had no idea he was sending the enemy's top commander to his death:

April 2, 3, 4—United States fighters destroyed 18 of 40 Zeros northeast of Guadalcanal, while other Allied bombers blasted enemy naval forces off New Ireland, sinking seven destroyers and cruisers.

April 7—Fifty Japanese bombers, escorted by 48 Zeros, attacked American shipping off Guadalcanal. United States fighters shot down 25 Zeros, 12 dive-bombers and 2 other planes. American losses were 1 destroyer, 1 tanker, one corvette and 7 planes.

April 11 to 16—Air battles over Oro Bay, Port Moresby, Milne Bay, all on New Guinea, in which a total of 82 planes were knocked out of heavy forces raiding those Allied bases; also a fight over the Japanese base at Wewak, New Guinea, in which seven enemy planes were downed.

Possibly Passenger Crash

An examination of Japanese broadcasts for April raised the possibility that Yamamoto was killed in a passenger plane crash rather than in combat, the Office of War Information reported.

A Tokyo broadcast in Burmese on April 18 reported that a large passenger plane carrying 14 persons including "very high-ranking officials," crashed into the sea between Singapore and Bankok on April 7, the OWI said.

President Roosevelt's comment on the passing of Yamamoto was "Gosh!"

Yamamoto was Japan's foremost advocate of the union of air and sea power and was one of the first commanders of any nationality to develop this combination to its maximum effectiveness.

Twenty years before Pearl Harbor, when he was only a commander and head of the navy's flying school at Kasumigaura, he already was fighting for a great expansion of the naval air arm. In 1936 he became chief of the navy's air forces and was able to put his theories into execution, making naval aviation the spearhead of Japan's war machine.

Prepared Campaign

In 1939 he was made commander in chief of the combined fleet and spent the next two years in preparation for the war against America and Britain he frequently said was coming. The planning and execution of the Pearl Harbor attack has been credited to him, as has that other stroke of audacity and luck that broke British naval power in the Orient, the sinking of the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse off Malaya only three days after Pearl Harbor.

Yamamoto held a hatred for the United States which surpassed that of any other Japanese of high station, at least in vigor of its expression.

He was one of the Japanese navy's ablest politicians as well as a strategist. He represented Tokyo at the London conference of 1935 which failed to achieve a prolongation of the naval treaties of Washington and London which had limited naval competition since 1922. Yamamoto personally had much to do with torpedoing that conference. He was adamant in his insistence on Japan's claims to naval equality with the United States and Britain.

bombers monthly in April next year.

Earlier in the day President Roosevelt reported that the ship construction program is well ahead of schedule, and he praised the seamen who take supplies to far-flung battle outposts for keeping open "the highway to victory and unconditional surrender" of the enemy.

In a statement on the occasion of National Maritime Day today, Mr. Roosevelt said special tribute should be paid to the men who sail the ships now coming out of building yards in increasing numbers.

By their "courage and fortitude," he said, they have "won the everlasting gratitude of the people of the United Nations."

He recounted the delivery of troops and equipment to the Southwest Pacific and to North Africa and the vast amounts of war supplies carried to Britain and Russia.

"The men of our American merchant marine,' 'he added, "have pushed through despite the perils of the submarine, the dive bomber and the surface raider. They have returned voluntarily to their jobs at sea again and again, because they realized that the life-lines to our battlefronts would be broken if they did not carry out their vital part in this global war."

In issuing the statement at a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt recalled that last year's Maritime Day was largely devoted to the men and women in the shipyards.

Mr. Roosevelt said the building yards are graduating slowly, too, from the Liberty ship to the Victory ship. The former vessel was designed for rapid, emergency construction and when first brought out was dubbed the "ugly duckling" by some.

The Victory ship is a better and faster vessel with a speed of 15 to 16 knots compared with 10 to 12 for the Liberty.

Yanks Encounter Blinding Ack-Ack Over New Guinea

Somewhere in New Guinea, May 11 (Delayed) (AP).—A new type of antiaircraft fire—brilliantly colored and of blinding intensity—was encountered by Flying Fortress pilots over Rabaul in the darkness of a pre-dawn raid today.

The use of this type of antiaircraft shell had been reported previously in Europe, but this was its first known appearance in the southwest Pacific theater.

Despite the bliding fire, American pilots roared straight over their target, Vunakanau airdrome, on the outskirts of Rabaul. Their bombs started a series of small fires, six of them thought to be from flaming enemy medium bombers caught on the ground.

Pilots making the raid included Capt. Arthur A. Fletcher, jr. of Brentwood, Md.

Allied Airmen Bag 11 Zeros In 3 Fights

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in Australia (Saturday), May 22.—The pace of the air war all over the southwest Pacific was stepped up sharply yesterday with good success for Allied fighters and bombers in combat with Japanese Zeros.

Eleven Zeros were shot down in three encounters, seven others probably destroyed and four damaged.

In three bombing missions, today's communique reported, one of the Allied bombers was shot down and three more planes were missing.

The biggest air battle occurred over Salamaua, New Guinea, where a force of Lightnings (P-38s) engaged a numerically superior formation of 20 Zeros, at about 25,000 feet. Six Zeros were shot down for certain, five were believed shot down and two others damaged. Four Allied fighters were damaged but managed to get back to their base.

For the fourth time within a week, Allied big bombers hit the Japanese air stronghold of Rabaul, New Britain, at a cost of two big planes. They started fires and caused explosions. Three of 15 enemy interceptors were shot down.

On New Britain's southern tip, Gasmata was raided by medium Allied bombers and one was reported missing.

Stalin Says He Will 'Consider' Letter Sent by Roosevelt

By William McGaffin
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, May 21.—Premier Stalin listened inscrutably to President Roosevelt's letter and then sat down for a talk of more than two hours with former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, who delivered the letter last night.

Stalin was described as a smiling host "who doesn't look like a man who worried."

The scene in the Kremlin when the letter was presented to Stalin after an air journey from Washington to Moscow was given today by Davies in an interview.

With him in the Kremlin was the incumbent Ambassador, Admiral William H. Standley.

Davies said he expected to see Stalin again—and probably more than once again—before he completed his short stay.

When the letter was translated, Stalin smiled, said he would be glad to consider it and would take it up with Davies in a day or two.

Indication of Contents

There still was no definite indication of what the letter contained, but Davies said "I am not here to conduct any negotiations."

Davies said the Russian Premier was dressed smartly in khaki and boots and wearing a single decoration, the silver star and red ribbon of the Order of Socialist Labor.

"He looks better than when I saw him last in 1938," said the former American envoy.

Stalin cordially inquired about the health of Mr. Roosevelt, said Davies, adding:

"I told him I was surprised to find him looking so well."

Davies said, "it was a regular old home week."

"Stalin was interested in conditions in the United States, and asked about the route I took to reach Moscow."

Pleased at Stalingrad Visit

Stalin was particularly pleased that Davies had visited Stalingrad en route.

When the American told Stalin he had laid flowers on the common grave of Russian dead in Stalingrad as a token of America's respect, Stalin appeared to be deeply moved.

"I thank you very much," said the Soviet leader.

Stalin then turned the conversation to Davies' book, "Mission to Moscow." Davies said the Premier expressed great interest in the book and the motion picture made from it and asked who was portraying President Roosevelt, the author and other leaders.

officers. He said they would go over these during the weekend and would then proceed to make their final decisions.

The President said the combined chiefs of staff, in their work of plotting blows against the Axis, had been getting along extremely well.

If past procedure is followed, a joint communique will be issued after Prime Minister Churchill is safely back in London. Such communiques naturally tell little. On the occasion of Churchill's visit here last summer, the White House-10 Downing Street statement said plans had been made to "divert" German strength from Russia. That was as near as they came to saying that, in early November, Anglo-American forces would land in French North Africa.

President Roosevelt was asked yesterday about the frequent visits to the White House of T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister.

Retail Sales Spurt Despite Poor Weather

Retail business overcame poor weather conditions during the past week to rise 7 to 14 per cent above 1942 levels, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported yesterday.

The mercantile agency in its weekly survey found warm weather clothing and furnishings and garden equipment in demand.

Canning equipment was popular and with spring housecleaning retailers reported customers were asking for better quality curtains and draperies.

Most merchants, the agency added, were stressing conservation because of scarcities in many lines.

Fur coat sales were reported showing large volume while fur storage facilities were in demand.

Retail regional trade gains were estimated as New England, 8 to 13 per cent; East, 6 to 10 per cent; Middle West, 3 to 6 per cent; Northwest, 4 to 8 per cent; South, 11 to 15 per cent; Southwest, 17 to 22 per cent and Pacific Coast, 14 to 17 per cent.

In wholesale channels business was up 5 to 7 per cent from a year ago, scarcity of merchandise limiting buying. Manufacturers were reported to be allotting shipments in many lines.

Union Orders End of Strike At Chrysler

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 21.—Hopes for quick resumption of war production in six strike-affected Chrysler Corp. plants here rested tonight on response by United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) members to orders from their local and international union officers and from the regional War Labor Board.

Strikes which union leaders said were unauthorized and which corporation spokesmen said were organized, deliberate stoppages had made an estimated 27,500 war workers idle.

U. A. W.-C. I. O. officials emerged from a three-hour conference with regional WLB representatives, corporation executives and Army and Navy officials late this afternoon to order the strikers back to their jobs. They said they hoped for restoration of production tomorrow morning.

Basis of Dispute

Herman L. Weckler, Chrysler vice president and general manager headed the corporation representatives in the conference.

Involved in the dispute that led to the strikes were contentions over renewal of a working contract that expired last November, and union claims that collective bargaining had "completely broken down," claims that were denied by a corporation spokesman.

A special WLB panel headed by Thomas J. Donahue of Detroit, former chairman of the Michigan State Labor Mediation Board is concluding its report for review by the National WLB. Donahue said today there were 68 issues involved and "you can't settle that kind of a case overnight when you try to consider the welfare of 80,000 workers."

Leo Lamotte, director of the U. A. W.-C. I. O. Chrysler division whose call for a return to work was disregarded by the strikers today, charged that "Reuther's boys pulled these strikes." Walter P. Reuther, U. A. W.-C. I. O. international vice president, replied that "Lamotte's conduct will be handled and settled through the regular channels of the international union."

War Deal Gratuities Revealed

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 21.—Testimony that thousands of dollars in commissions, bonuses and gratuities have been paid by Detroit subcontractors to obtain warwork from major manufaturing firms was presented today to a subcommittee of the Truman War Investigating Committee here.

In the absence of Senator Wallgren (Democrat) of Washington, called back to Washington overnight, Senator Ferguson (Republican) of Michigan carried on the inquiry alone.

One witness testified that he had paid several hundred dollars in cash and presented $1125 worth of victory bonds to Ralph Pierce of the Ford Motor Co.'s purchasing department for "cooperation and good will."

The witness was Albert A. Leclare, who identified himself as sole owner of the Paramount Engineering Co. He said that he had done something like half a million dollars worth of subcontracting work for the Ford company and that his own income last year totaled $108,000.

Pierce informed him a few days ago, Leclare testified, that he had been discharged by the Ford company "because of suspicion" that he had received gratuities from Leclare.

Leclare also testified to having made payments to an employe of the engineering department of the Dodge division of Chrysler Corp., totaling about $1000 but insisted some of it was in repayment for loans and some for work done for Leclare's company "in the evening."

One of yesterday's witnesses, Arthur Stone, general manager of S. & F. Tool Co., testified that he paid a former employe of the purchasing division of the Packard Motor Car Co. $63,346 to get his firm more than one million dollars worth of contracts from Packard and other companies.

Aksel Kristensen, president of Apex Metal Specialties of Farmington, Mich., told the subcommittee that Oldsmobile officials insisted he charge them $29.50 for Oldsmobile when he could have made a profit at $19.50.

Kristensen said he had two "brokers," one of whom had a contract for 10 per cent on contracts secured for the firm. He said he paid one of them $21,000 in two years and paid the other $500 for getting him $30,000 worth of business from Ford Motor Co.

Colonel Drank To Excess, Says Shooting Study

Col. William T. Colman, commanding officer of Selfridge Field, Mich., who was removed from his post after the wounding of Pvt. William McRae, Negro, "had been drinking to excess," Representative Paul Shafer (Republican) of Michigan said last night in a prepared report of his one-man investigation.

Shafer declared that Colonel Colman's "conduct . . . was well known throughout the post and to citizens of nearby cities," that he was "on the verge of a nervous breakdown," and that "if the Inspector General's Office had properly functioned," the officer would have been removed and hospitalized weeks ago.

The private, Shafer said, was assigned to the chauffeurs' pool, and "so far as I could ascertain had never 'before had any direct contact with the colonel" before the shooting on May 5.

Demanding that there be no "whitewash" of the situation at the Army post, the Michigan congressman recommended that the Military Affairs Committee "insist upon an early report on the progress of the War Department's inquiry, and that the alleged irregularities be proved or dispreved promptly."

Takoma Club Holds 1943 Iris Show

Silver Spring neighbors carried off the highest awards at the twenty-seventh annual iris show of the Takoma Horticultural Club in conjunction with the American Iris Society, which closed last night at the Takoma Park Branch of the Public Library, Fifth and Cedar Streets Northwest.

Charles Davidson, 9208 Flower Avenue, assistant superintendent of the classification division of the Postoffice Department, won the silver medal given by the A. I. S. for scoring 67 points in the collection, specimen and arrangement classes.

Davidson also received the check list of the A. I. S., which identifies all registered irises, with 37 points in the specimen group of beareded iris. His exhibit of a lavender "Great Lakes," with three large blooms, was judged the best flower in the show and won the blue ribbon for first in its class.

The bronze medal given by the A. I. S. for second place went to Ivan H. Richmond, 9200 Flower Avenue, who had 45 points to his credit with five blue ribbons, three seconds and a third.

Mrs. Joseph J. Sazama, 5324 Ninth Street Northwest, won 30 points with four blue ribbons mostly in the arrangements groups. One of the most attractive was the shallow green bowl filled with several stalks of lavender "Princess Beatrix" irises with self-foliage. It was exhibited by Mrs. R. H. Fiedler, 7100 Eighth Street Northwest.

A brother and sister, Gerald and Dorothy Haggerty, 405 Quackenboss Street, won all the awards in the class for children under 12 years old. Their exhibits were miniatures.

War Brings Coed Editors To Md. U.

A time-honored tradition at the University of Maryland fell victim to the exigencies of war yesterday when chief editorial posts on all three of the school's student publications went to a group of coeds.

Jacqueline A. Brophy of 250 Farragut Street Northwest, formerly the first woman managing editor of the Diamondback, the student newspaper, was named editor in chief, succeeding Edward Rider of Baltimore.

Mary Ellen Wolford of 5259 Nebraska Avenue Northwest, the University's May queen and president of the Kappa Delta sorority, was named editor in chief of the Terrapin, the student yearbook.

Jane Woodring of 202 Raymond Street, Chevy Chase, Md., was appointed editor in chief of the humor magazine, the Old Line. Other editorial appointments which went to women were:

On the Diamondback, Dorothy Jackson, Middle River, Md., women's editor; Jane Gambrill, White Marsh, Md., feature editor, and Barbara Reed, College Park, Md., business manager.

On the Terrapin, Martha Ann Cotterman, of 4511 Knox Road, College Park, Md., managing editor, and Janet Andrea, of Catonsville, Md., business manager.

Appointments to the Old Line were: Elizabeth Ring, of 8 Rosemary Street, Chevy Chase, associate editor; Jane K. Mann, 7006 Arlington Road, Bethesda, Md., art editor, and Barbara Kephart, of 226 Maple Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., business manager.

One exception to the new regime is Arthur O'Keefe, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y., who was named an associate editor of the Old Line with Miss Ring.

Pleasure Driving

The ban on pleasure driving is with us again. By this time the public has become accustomed to shifts from the honor system to outright prohibition of pleasure driving, and it knows from experience that neither system works. So long as motorists are permitted to buy gas, a good many are certain to use it in ways that are not strictly "honorable." On the other hand, when motorists are forbidden to use gas for nonessential purposes under threat of punishment, the enforcement task becomes a formidable job that cannot be efficiently discharged.

The first duty of the OPA should be to try to avert a gas crisis instead of waiting until supplies are exhausted before taking vigorous steps to reduce consumption. The marked lack of success in curbing pleasure driving, either by persuasion or by threat of force, is convincing evidence that the present method of doling out scarce supplies needs to be reformed. For the sake of propitiating an army of automobile owners whose cars ought to be put in storage for the duration, the OPA has permitted supplies available for essential users to decline to the vanishing point. Until the authorities have the courage to forbid sales of gasoline to anybody except on the basis of proved necessity, we might as well resign ourselves to periodical crises under the temporizing system now in force.

OWI Propaganda

Representative Halleck's attack on the OWI for an alleged attempt to "defeat the will of the people" on pay-as-you-go taxation was incited by perusal of a pamphlet entitled "How To Raise 16 Billion Dollars." We are not only inclined to sympathize with Mr. Halleck, but to go a little farther and characterize the pamphlet as an assault on the general sales tax and a plea for the spendings tax, the Treasury's favorite anti-inflation panacea.

To be sure, the pamphlet sets down meticulously the chief arguments for and against these various tax proposals, and it is quite possible that the compiler did his best to be fair to both sides. But the fact is that anybody who knows enough to hold intelligent opinions about tax proposals can hardly do complete justice to those who hold contrary opinions. Since he has to pick and choose his arguments, he tends to stress the strong points of the favored side and to play down the opposition. We venture to guess, therefore, that the person responsible for summarization of the arguments for and against pay-as-you-go taxes was no friend of the Ruml plan, or he would not have stressed the issue of tax "forgiveness" so persistently.

However, the chief objection to the pamphlet is not the method of treatment, but the fact that so controversial a subject as the raising of 16 billion dollars should have been selected for discussion. The material does not lend itself to the unbiased, objective treatment that we have a right to demand and should insist upon having. None of us wants to know what the OWI investigators and write-up men think about important war information. We want to know what is being done and what has been done in connection with the war effort that concerns the American people. Insofar as that information affords no aid to the enemy, we want straight news uncolored by the conscious or unconscious bias of the narrator.

The OWI is certain to acquire a reputation for propagandizing by stepping outside the field of news reporting to instruct us in the intricacies of subjects that do not lend themselves to objective treatment. So while we greatly doubt that the OWI pamphlet turned any votes against the Ruml plan, we are glad to have the unsuitability of the offending publication brought to public attention by an indignant Congressman.

Unemployment Levy

After unconscionable delay and repeated disappointments, the bill providing for a reduction in District of Columbia unemployment payroll levies is about to become a law. The bill, passed by the Senate last Thursday as an amendment to the District Unemployment Compensation Act, has been returned to the House for action on a few Senate amendments, but passage is now confidently expected within a short time. Under the existing law, District employers last year paid into the unemployment compensation fund $8,249,000 while payments out of the fund amounted to only $1,158,000. Even in the year 1941, when unemployment benefits were at maximum, nearly $4,400,000 were added to the reserve fund. At the present rate of inflow it is estimated that the reserve fund, now in excess of $36,000,000, would meet all claims on it for the next 15 years if not another dollar were collected from District employers.

It is patently absurd and unfair to pile up funds taken from local employers to finance a system of unemployment insurance that could be fully safeguarded against insolvency by payments of a fraction of the amount now collected. Accordingly the bill provides for a graded scale of payments descending from the present rate of 2.7 per cent of payroll outlays down to one-tenth of 1 per cent. The lowest rate would be paid by employers with the lowest labor turnover. In other words, an experience-rating system, already in force in all but a few States, is substituted for the existing uniform levy. Increased benefits are also provided for insured employes, maximum weekly payments to the unemployed being raised from $18 to $20, and the waiting period being reduced from two weeks to one week.

Not only employers but employes will, therefore, gain by passage of the bill that the Senate has just approved. Furthermore, the District itself will lose nothing by the change, since the funds collected are not available for local use. If there were any immediate prospect of a change from the present decentralized system of unemployment insurance to a central, completely federalized system, there might be some ground for objection to a reduction in the amounts contributed to the District fund by District employers But such objections, if valid for the District, would be equally valid in case of States that have acted to cut the size of employer contributions. Under the circumstances there is no excuse for further delay in acting on a measure that would lighten the tax load of District firms and at the same time provide more liberal benefits for the unemployed.

Cox And The FCC

Speaker Rayburn manifested both tact and good judgment in referring FCC Commissioner Durr's petition in the Cox case to the House Judiciary Committee. No group in the House has a higher reputation for fairness, integrity and a sense of public responsibility than the Judiciary Committee under the chairmanship of Hatton W. Sumners. The Speaker's selection of the Judiciary Committee to look into Mr. Durr's charges is equivalent to acknowledgement that a serious issue involving the confidence of the public in the House has been raised.

It is reasonable to assume that the Judiciary Committee will conduct public hearings to get to the bottom of the charge that Congressman Cox has a personal interest in the investigation of the FCC which he is making as a representative of the House. Certainly Commissioner Durr should be given an opportunity to present his case and Mr. Cox an opportunity to explain how he can impartially investigate the FCC after taking a check for $2500 from a broadcasting station which now has an application for renewal of license pending before the FCC. That check was issued to cover "legal expenses" shortly after Congressman Cox had importuned the FCC to grant Station WALB its original license. Certainly the whole case demands a public airing, and since the prestige of the House is at stake we are especially pleased to see that the task of giving it such an airing has been turned over to the Judiciary Committee.

Incidentally, Speaker Rayburn's fairness and good judgment in thus submitting the case to a high-minded and impartial committee puts Attorney General Biddle to shame. The facts about Representative Cox's acceptance of the check in question after he had pleaded the cause of Station WALB before the commission were laid before the Department of Justice more than a year ago. The law provides a fine or prison sentence for any member of Congress who accepts compensation for any services rendered in relation to proceedings before a Federal department or bureau. The Attorney General has not yet mustered the courage to have a grand jury look into the facts to determine whether the law has been violated.

Yamamoto

But for his boastfulness, little would have been known in this country of Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the combined Japanese fleet, who is reported killed in action. It was only after it became known that a full year before Pearl Harbor he had declared he would dictate peace with America at the White House that some interest was taken in this Nipponese fire-eater. He was the man who planned the sneak attack at Pearl Harbor. As a technical performance the job was done superbly well. If Yamamoto had followed it up, without doubt the flag of the Rising Sun could have been hoisted over the islands, with dangerous consequences for our Pacific Coast. But it would have been a gambler's throw to have sent a naval force of any size into the attack on Hawaii, and only a Nelson would have ventured it.

The Japanese are not gamblers. They don't believe that the boldest measures are the safest, but, on the contrary, plan their operations with methodical thoroughness. How carefully trained they are, how skilled in military tactics, needs no further demonstration. They have destroyed all the myths which flourished in prewar days about their inefficiency. How much the Japanese owe to Admiral Yamamoto for the brilliance of their naval warfare may only be surmised. The Japanese genius lies in group leadership and group action, and all the men at the top have a passion for anonymity that makes the task of particularizing achievement difficult. At any rate, Admiral Yamamoto was the operating head of the Japanese navy, and must, therefore, be given a high rating as an outstanding naval commander. It is significant that he should have been killed in an airplane as he was directing a battle at sea. Yamamoto was a pioneer in amphibious operations, in which the Japanese have provided our Navy with abundant lessons. His loss to Japan is our gain.

Attu And After

With the fall of Attu, which now appears imminent, the way will soon be paved for the elimination of the last Japanese foothold in the Aleutians. This does not mean that from now on our forces in that area will have altogether easy sailing. To believe that is to underestimate the tenacity of the Japanese. But, at any rate, with Attu in our hands and with other American-held islands, such as Amchitka, in close proximity to Kiska on the east, the pincers can now be closed on the Japanese garrison at Kiska.

At the beginning of the Attu operations some fear was expressed that the Japanese might move considerable naval forces into the Aleutians with the idea of reinforcing the beleaguered Japanese garrison while, at the same time, bolstering up the defenses at Kiska. Apparently nothing of the kind has happened. One reason may very well be that the enemy is hoarding his strength for action elsewhere. There is the additional circumstance that the Japanese, having learned how lethal is the effect of our land-based bombers on shipping, have decided not to risk too much additional strength in what they may have deemed a losing venture, anyway. But no chances are being taken, and American naval vessels are standing by to give battle to the Japanese should any enemy naval units appear on the scene.

Inflation Gap

The inflation gap continues to widen as Congress makes up its mind in what way to enact pay-as-you-go. According to SEC estimates, individuals added 4300 million dollars to their cash and checking balances during the first three months of this year. At that rate, additions to cash holdings during a single year would exceed 17 billion dollars, exclusive of time or savings deposits, which were increasing at an annual rate of about 2 billion dollars during the first quarter of the year. Moreover, people are carrying more cash in their pockets than ever before in our history. The increase in currency in circulation is proceeding at the rate of about five billion dollars yearly and most of that new money is finding lodgment in the hands of individuals.

These steady additions to consumer purchasing power have been superimposed upon an already highly inflated volume of deposits and currency resulting from Government wartime deficit financing. The result of such piled-up accumulations of spendable funds is a tremendous buying pressure that is the basic cause of black markets and of the relentless rise in living costs.

As the SEC is careful to point out, increases in cash in hand and checking accounts are not savings in the same sense as increases in security holdings. They are liquid funds that may at any time be used to buy goods. Hence they constitute a particularly unstable, potentially inflationary element in the monetary system that will become increasingly dangerous as time goes by, unless the reservoir of idle cash is drained by heavier taxes or savings bonds are sold to individuals in much greater volume than heretofore.

SO THEY ARE FALLEN

So they are fallen, and the meadow lies
Open as sleepless eyes under the arch
Of the beneficent skies.
Fallen they stay, as in the arc of time
Motion is caught, prolonging day.

This boy beside his gun
Has now upon his face a listening look,
As though the bird that speaks in the green tree
Could tell the meaning of this place.
And by the stream another sees
Not water, where his hand is dipped,
But the cool core of water's dream.
And here upon the rising grass,
His head upon his folded arm,
The youngest sleeps as years ago he slept
On the old farm upon a summer day,
His face pressed downward in the grass.

Here all the years converge
Upon a summer day.
Here they will sleep, nor wake,
Until the living pass this way.

L. A. Industry

PRESIDENT Vargas of Brazil in his recent speech at Volta Redonda called attention to one of the most significant developments in recent New World history. This is the ambition of all the large Latin-American countries and most of the small ones to reduce their extreme dependence on outside sources of manufactured supplies.

Brazil began to foster home manufacturing in the early 1930's and in that decade increased industrial production faster than any country in the world except Russia. Other Latin-American nations were realizing the merits of the idea when the Second World War began to cut sharply into their European supply sources. Severe effects convinced them once and for all that being tied to these sources was not only disadvantageous economically but actually dangerous.

In 1939, '40 and '41, Venezuela, Chile, Colombia, Peru, Uruguay and Mexico began to lay plans to increase manufacturing. Chile and Uruguay obtained export-import loans to finance hydro-electric projects to supply the basic necessity, power. Brazil began to realize her old dream of a national steel industry with export-import financing to buy United States equipment.

Other countries were looking toward the United States for export-import financing to buy equipment with.

During the Depression

During the depression, Brazil had bought used and obsolete plants in this country. As we began to shift industrial activities to war after 1940 and new equipment grew scarce, the idea got about that machinery left idle by this shift could be transferred to Latin America.

Several realities of war have cut sharply across Latin-American dreams of early industrial expansion. There is not a great deal of machinery idle in this country, some of what we have must be kept for replacements and some is not what Latin America needs. Finally, shipping is so tight that it is difficult to get it to them.

In spite of this, however, Latin America's progress toward industrialization has not been stopped by war. Most countries, on the contrary, are, with United States cooperation, going forward with an indispensable groundwork that has to be laid before much manufacturing expansion could be hoped for even in time of peace.

In the first place, the United States has managed to get to them the equipment necessary to carry on with important projects that were already under way. Brazil's steel plants are building, Chile and Uruguay are getting machinery for their power plants. In addition, we have released equipment to them for projects that produce materials for us and relieve the drain on our supplies. Mexico has got new power plants, a new steel mill and equipment to expand existing steel production. Chile has got two small blast furnaces and a rolling mill, Venezuela some power expansion, Peru and Cuba new metal-processing equipment.

As important as the actual equipment that we are able to spare for Latin America is the technical training and industrial skills that our neighbors are getting through present cooperative programs. Lack of trained and experienced workmen is the first obstacle to the industrialization. It has proved a drawback even in installing and operating the comparatively few new industries that they have been able to start in recent years.

Necessary Training

Latin Americans are getting this necessary new training through two channels.

First, the great drive to develop Latin-American resources for our war effort that the Board of Economic Warfare set under way in 1942 is taking many trained Americans into Latin America, where they are necessarily advising on production methods. Brazil has invited a commission of American industrial engineers to come there and streamline her economy for war. In doing this, the most efficient manufacturing techniques will be introduced.

The second is the industrial training program of the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs. Begun in late 1941, it has brought scores of young Latin Americans to the United States to work in our factories. Here they serve a year to two years' apprenticeship, learning many steps of various industrial activities. Carefully picked, these young men will take back to their countries skills and training otherwise impossible for them to obtain. They will be able to train labor throughout Latin America in the future when machinery will be available.

Industrializing Latin America will be a very slow process, but one desirable for us to aid. They will not make the heavy goods we sell them, rather the consumer goods formerly bought from Europe. Purchases from us can be expected to rise. But more important to the New World's post-war security, their extreme vulnerability to European influences will be lessened.

Bull Ring Of War

By Barnet Nover

When The Banderilleros Finish

IN THAT DARK SUMMER of 1940 when only Britain stood between the Nazis and total victory the writer asked a distinguished American Army officer who had just returned from London whether he believed Hitler could be beaten and if so how. At that time a great many Americans were convinced that Britain was doomed and a Hitler triumph inevitable.

"Yes," said this officer, "Hitler can be beaten and will be beaten. Have you ever read Ernest Hemingway's 'Death In the Afternoon'"?

In a bull fight, he explained, the bull, when he enters the ring, is infinitely stronger than the matador. And he remains stronger than the opponent who is determined to kill him practically up to the very last moment of the fight. Yet in the end it is usually not the matador who dies, but the bull.

THE WAY TO DEFEAT Germany, the officer continued, is to employ the method used in killing a bull in a bull ring. First the bull is opposed only by pikes thrust by picadors mounted on old and blindfolded nags. The bull is usually more enraged than weakened by this foray and vents his wrath on the helpless horses.

Then come the chulos and banderilleros who wave their red cloaks in front of the bull, divert his attention away from the picadors and cause him to waste his energy in mad rushes around the ring.

Still later come the barbed darts or banderillas which are thrust into the bull's neck, weakening the powerful muscles there. There are other maneuvers also designed to tire out the bull.

It is not until all these preparations have been made and the bull's weakened strength is matched by the matador's strength and skill that the bullfight reaches its climactic stage—the kill.

"IF BRITAIN holds out," said the officer, "the course and duration of the war will depend on how effectively Germany's strength can be dissipated, how effectively her muscles can be weakened.

"We can be sure that Germany will not stand still. If she finds she cannot beat England, she will try other ventures. She will rush into the Balkans or Russia or North Africa, dividing her substance, extending her lines, weakening her strength.

For probably a long while Britain will not be able to attack the Reich directly, except through the air. But the total effect of these thrusts, plus the diversionary efforts previously made, may make Germany ripe for the plunge of the sword into her vitals."

EVENTS HAVE triumphantly justified this remarkable prognosis.

In the months that followed, Germany rushed into the Balkans and Crete, she rushed into the Soviet Union, she ventured across the Mediterranean into Libya and Egypt and, most recently, hurled her strength against the Allies in Tunisia.

In the meantime the R. A. F., first weakly but with steadily mounting force, has planted darts in Germany's industrial muscles in the Ruhr and Rhineland, the Baltic and Berlin.

The work of these aerial banderilleros has led some to believe that a continuance of their efforts will be enough to kill the German bull or at least force the beast to quit the fight. There are cases in bull-ring history where that has happened. But such cases are rare.

"Opinion is divided," said Winston Churchill in his great speech at the joint session of Congress last Wednesday, "as to whether the use of air power could by itself bring about the collapse in Germany and Italy. The experiment is well worth trying so long as other measures are not excluded."

We can be certain that these other measures are being prepared and that they will be put into force as soon as possible. The sword of the Allied matador is being sharpened. The chulos, with their red capes, are at their posts along two great arcs stretching from Iceland to the southern shores of the Mediterranean to the Turkish border. But the sword is concealed and the bull, sensing danger in every flash of every cape, is confused by the very multiplicity of the points of danger.

It would be folly to assume that the final kill will be easy and effortless. The German bull is weaker, far weaker than when he entered the ring. His muscles are beginning to pain with fatigue. But there is still great power in the brute body, a lethal force in the horns.

Southern Slavs

I read with great interest, in the issue of May 6, the article by the Prime Minister of Yugoslavia, Dr. Slobodan Jonanovitch. The title of the article, "Serbia Eyes Future," is somewhat of a misnomer because the article deals with Yugoslavia as a whole and not with Serbia alone. In his article Dr. Jonanovitch deals with minorities and believes that those minorities which were Fifth Columnists should be transferred after the war. I believe that Dr. Jonanovitch is confusing minorities with individuals of a minority. I am sure that the Yugoslav people after this war will continue to treat minorities in the same way that they have been treated before the war, while Fifth Columnists, irrespective of whether they belonged to a minority or not, will be dealt with, not by transferring them, but by treating them as criminals right where they are caught, the same way as the people will deal with the Quisling of Croatia, Pavelitch, and his counterpart in Serbia, Neditch.

In an editorial interjection you ask just what minorities Dr. Jonanovitch was referring to. You mention Bosnians, Montenegrins and Slavonians. I would like to state that these people are not minorities, nor are the Croats, Slovenes or Dalmatians. They are southern Slavs as much as the Serbs are and, therefore, constitute an integral part of Yugoslavia, a kingdom of the southern Slavs and not a kingdom of the Serbs embodying the territories of those people.

The postwar problems of this world cannot be solved by ousting minorities. Such an action would only create new problems and new grievances. Any forcible move for a group of people is undesirable. The people in Yugoslavia were rapidly heading toward that state before the country was conquered, and it will be one of the tasks of the politicians in that country to work on furthering an understanding and not by destroying an understanding.

FRANK JOSEPH.

Dr. Benes' Visit

Mr. Balasy speaks of Hungary's "legitimate demands"—without stating any or what claims they have to legitimacy. Were not the Czechs and Slovaks under the German, Austrian and Magyar yoke for some three hundred years? What kind of complaint has Mr. Balasy about the treatment of the small minority of Magyars for these past twenty-five years? Has not George Bernard Shaw pointedly and briefly answered this lengthy and verbose column years ago with these now classic words—"I'd rather be a Hungarian under Czecho-Slovak rule than a Czecho-Slovak under Magyar rule."

Decline and Fall

You state quite correctly that the Prussian scheme of world domination is said to be based on Roman analogy. This is true, not because of conscious imitation, but because conquerors throughout history have been forced to use similar methods to rule a vast and unwilling subject population. However, your favorable comments on the prosperity, peace and tolerance of the Roman Empire are not in accord with the facts of Roman history, as they are emerging from the painstaking reexamination of the sources undertaken by scholars during the last 30 years.

Rostovtzeff and others have shown that the alleged prosperity of the Roman Empire during the first two centuries of our era was by no means general, but was limited to certain regions and to certain social groups in those regions. On the whole, only large landowners and merchants of Roman and Italian citizenship and their pro-Roman counterparts in the provinces enjoyed the benefits of the Pax Romana. For the great mass of the population, both in Italy and in the provinces, the situation was otherwise, nor would they have agreed with your remark that "for most of them the loss of independence seemed a small price for the benefits of Roman jurisdiction." The "prosperity" of the Roman "New Order" was constantly disturbed by rebellions, flights from the land, messianic movements and assassinations of emperors even during the first and second centuries A. D., and these grew to such magnitude during the third and fourth centuries that they threatened to overwhelm the empire. The true attitude of the Roman peasant or slave and of the provincials is best expressed by the famous remark of the Gallic chieftain, "the Romans make a desert and call it peace."

The Roman toleration of the faiths and customs of the subject peoples was strictly limited to innocuous beliefs which were not directly or indirectly relevant to the realities of Roman economic or political power. Even philosophy was encouraged to be antirational and antiscientific in character as witnessed by the official support given to Stoicism and the persecution of the scientific followers of Epicurus and Lucretius. Ostensibly religious messianic movements, especially in the East, were quite correctly considered by the Romans to be secular and political in origin and implication, just as we regarded similar movements among the American Indians during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. The plight of the Jews and of the Christians under the empire illustrates only too well the doubtful character of Roman toleration.

The official propaganda of the Roman Empire may be regarded as one of the most successful in history since it deceives us even to the present day. The literary tradition, on which most of our knowledge of Roman history was based until recently, was almost exclusively the product of members of the ruling group or of favored provincials well-disposed toward the empire. In the light of modern research, reliance on the traditional viewpoint is equivalent to praising the Romans because "Caesar made the ox carts run on time."

Mr. Stalin—Another book, eh? Get me in on the movie rights.

Mr. Davies—No book or movie this time.

Mr. Stalin—Don't be silly. Every American writes a book on every visit, every place. Look at Willkie: he was here only a couple of days and has got the best seller on Russia and other countries ever written.

Mr. Davies—Why don't you write a book, Joe?

Mr. Stalin—I always stick to facts, so Hollywood couldn't use my stuff.

Mr. Davies—Joe, I'm here with a message from President Roosevelt.

Mr. Stalin—Tell him I can't come.

Mr. Davies—But you haven't heard the message!

Mr. Stalin—I'm sure it's another plea for me to drop everything and have a conference.

Mr. Davies—Suppose it is? You ought to do it.

Mr. Stalin—Why?

Mr. Davies—You and Roosevelt together would make a terrific impression all over the world. It would be worth a dozen battles.

Mr. Stalin—What size battles?

Mr. Davies—Oh, let's not get too technical. A meeting would be of immeasurable value as propaganda. Look at the Axis: Hitler and Mussolini were always conferring.

Mr. Stalin—And look where they are today!

Mr. Davies—You ought to do it, Joe.

Mr. Stalin—I'm afraid Franklin will have to get a fourth term without my meeting him.

Mr. Davies—President Roosevelt does not want another term.

Mr. Stalin—And I do not want part of Poland back. That starts us off in the true spirit of diplomacy.

Mr. Davies — You and Mr. Roosevelt have much in common. You ought to meet and swap views.

Mr. Stalin—I really couldn't leave the country. The Russian people have a peculiar idea that I belong in Russia.

Mr. Davies — I hope you will reconsider. By the way, I was left a little dizzy by your recent series of statements on Poland.

Mr. Stalin — If you were left dizzy, what shape do you think I'm in?

Mr. Davies — You threw the Poles through the window in one breath and sent them love, kisses and best wishes for a very happy life in the postwar world in the next breath.

Mr. Stalin—It was something I ate. I haven't talked that much in such a short space of time in years.

Mr. Davies—It is important that we stick together on objectives.

Mr. Stalin—I never talk of objectives while I'm in a free-for-all battle with bandits.

Mr. Davies—But all people are entitled to know what we are fighting for.

Mr. Stalin—We are fighting for our lives, and that's enough for anybody to know.

Mr. Davies—Yes, but whose life comes first?

Mr. Stalin — Let's not go into that. We want to keep this discussion on a candid level.

(The phone rings.)

Mr. Davies—If that's for me, tell them I'm busy.

Mr. Stalin—Come, come, Tovarich, it might be from Warner Brothers!

We notice as many ads as ever for stunning bathing suits for this summer at the beaches. But All-Out Arlene can't escape the belief that a bathing beauty is going to feel a little cheap if she isn't on a furlough.

Maybe it would be proper to classify the events in Africa as marking "the end of the beginning of the beginning."

World records for playing the ponies were set at the Jamaica meeting. Nearly 35 million dollars were bet during the meeting. This is an average of $1,238,299 each afternoon in three hours. It would seem that a good many Americans are buying $2 mutuel tickets as a hedge against inflation.

On the closing Saturday $2,174,497 were bet for the day, a world record of a half-million was bet on a single race and over $100,000 on the daily double. This racing craze is getting decidely gooney. There are tens of thousands of people loose today who are actually investing in mutuel tickets for the long pull.

Senator Chandler's Speech

A CAREFUL reading of Senator Chandler's speech will leave no ground for thinking that he was the mouthpiece of our highest military commanders. It is no doubt true, indeed it is evident, that Senator Chandler had heard and was repeating odds and ends of military gossip and theorizing. But his views are such a mixture of truths, half-truths, and misinformation that they cannot be the views of men who are really responsible for the overall strategical decisions.

LIPPMANN

THUS WE find him agreeing that if General Chennault were given 500 planes "he could drive the Japs out of China." Five minutes later we find him saying "until we reconquer Burma, we shall not be able to drive the Japanese out of China." It is plain from these two statements that the Senator has heard the echoes of two sides of a serious argument among American military men—between the exponents of air power and of the Infantry—which it is the business of this conference to reconcile and decide.

We find him saying also that there is "a British army of 2,000,000 in India . . . being held off from Burma by about 60,000 Japanese." But this statement cannot come from a competent professional soldier. For it implies that there is a land front on which the British Indian army can fight the Japanese army. There is no such land front. A very small British force—perhaps smaller and less efficient than it should have been—was recently defeated in the attempt to take Akyab. But if it had succeeded, it would not have opened up a land front in Burma from which a large army could operate. It would have obtained a highly desirable but isolated outpost, and no more. The fact of the matter is that Burma is to India about what Alaska and the Aleutian Islands are to the United States. Burma, like Alaska, has to be reached by sea. To ask: Why do not the two million British Indians march into Burma and drive out the Japanese—is exactly like saying why do not our four million troops in the United States march into Alaska and drive the Japanese out of Kiska.

SINCE NO competent soldier could possibly think that Burma can be reconquered over land, the problem is obviously one of naval power and of shipping. Assume then that we might find the necessary transports and cargo ships for this sea-borne invasion of Burma.

Who would supply the naval ships to protect them? Is Senator Chandler proposing to send an American naval force into the Indian Ocean, a force made up by taking naval ships away from Nimitz and Halsey? Or is he counting on a British fleet in the Indian Ocean, and if so, until the Axis is out of the Mediterranean and the Italian navy eliminated, how does he suppose such a fleet can be constituted?

THE OTHER half of Senator Chandler's argument is that with the conquest of Africa, and of Sicily and Sardinia which he anticipates, "we have literally forged a ring of steel around the German army and its government." The Senator believes that we can now give "Great Britain and the Soviet Union the necessary support to keep them going" while we mount a major offensive against Japan. But when you inquire as to where this major offensive is to be mounted, and how, you find that it is to be mounted by the British from India and by the Russians in Siberia. For Senator Chandler seems to have no illusions that Japan can be defeated decisively from any of the bases where American forces are concentrated—from Australia, Guadalcanal, Hawaii or Alaska.

Thus in fact the Senator is asking not only that we halt our own offensive in Europe but that the British and the Russians should also halt theirs. If the Senator saw 200 German divisions in the Mississippi Valley, or if he saw the German land, sea, and air power twenty miles from the Atlantic Coast, he would understand better how our Allies feel. He would certainly not say so easily that we have forged a ring of steel around the German army if he happened to live in Leningrad, Moscow, or even London.

SENATOR Chandler's fundamental thesis is on its face entirely false. He recognizes that Japan must be defeated, not from the islands of the Pacific but from the continent of Asia—from India, China, and Russia. It follows inexorably that to defeat Japan we must have the help of our Allies. Yet he is proposing a plan which ignores the fact that one of our Allies—Russia—is invaded and her richest territory occupied by the enemy, and that our other ally—Britain—is besieged by sea and air.

It is not conceivable that any competent professional strategist has told him that in a war where we need allies, we can get those allies while they are so deeply engaged elsewhere. Is it not self-evident that the quickest and surest way to get the allies we must have in Asia is to help disengage them in Europe?

THE TROUBLE with the kind of argument that Senator Chandler has started is that to expose its fallacies may in itself lead to a false conclusion. It would be a very false conclusion, for example, to suppose that the alternative to the Chandler argument is to do nothing. Quite the contrary. Our power is growing so rapidly on the sea and in the air that there is no good reason why the important Pacific theaters cannot be heavily reinforced, and certainly no reason why plans cannot be drawn and the preparations advanced and the directing commanders chosen for the great converging offensives which will be undertaken.

Blue Stamps Extended

Sugar For Canning

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

To lighten the month-end buying rush that has developed under rationing, the OPA yesterday extended through June 7 the expiration date of blue stamps G, H, and J in War Ration Book No. 2. They were previously slated to become ineffective after May 31.

At the same time the next three sets of blue stamps for processed foods—those lettered K, L, and M—were made good beginning next Monday and the date of their death extended from June 30 to July 7.

All six stamps are thus valid during the two weeks from May 24 to June 7, OPA pointed out, again urging consumers not to hoard their stamps in expectation of point value changes but to spread their use evenly through the weeks.

Another important OPA announcement was that housewives can use stamps 15 and 16 in War Ration Book 1 to get sugar for home canning.

Valid Until October 31.

Both stamps become good next Monday and are valid until October 31. Each permits the holder to purchase 5 pounds of sugar, if needed for canning—and the housewife is put on her honor when she expresses this need, and application to the local ration board for canning coupons is eliminated.

Families who need more than 10 pounds of sugar per person for canning purposes, however, must apply to their rationing boards. The OPA estimated sugar from the two stamps would be sufficient to provide each person with 40 quarts of canned fruit. If all is used for jams and jellies, of course, the yield in quarts will be much smaller.

Regular sugar allowances provided under rationing are not affected by the canning ruling. Stamp 13, which becomes valid June 1 and can be spent any time before August 15 is good for 5 pounds of sugar—to be used as the consumer pleases.

No Change in Coffee Date

Also, OPA pointed out, there is no change in the expiration date of coffee stamps. Persons still holding coffee and sugar stamps good until May 31 were cautioned that many stores will be closed on that date because Memorial Day falls on Sunday.

Five Are Arrested In Potato Cases

warrants have been issued is one wholesaler who, the accusation says, was warned by an OPA inspector to stop selling at above ceiling prices but who refused, saying:

"I cannot make any money that way."

Others are dealers from all parts of the city against whom complaints have been lodged by customers forced to pay from 10 cents to as high as 15 cents a pound for potatoes.

These will be the first such cases to be tried in Washington. The maximum penalty upon conviction is a $5000 fine and one year in jail.

In the meantime local dealers who have consistently refused to indulge in black market deals, said they had been notified they would not get any of the Florida crop as the Government had "frozen" all remaining stocks for the use of the Armed Forces and that the Alabama crop had been exhausted to the extent that Alabama dealers were now trying to import spuds.

The South Carolina crop, which is just now being shipped in much smaller than last year and few if any of these potatoes are expected to arrive here through legal channels.

The next crop which it is hoped will be sufficient to relieve, at least partly, the famine condition here, is North Carolina potatoes and these will not be ready for harvesting until early June.

Slight relief has been experienced in the last two or three days by the arrival of a few cars from Florida and Alabama, shipped before the freeze order and the exhaustion of the other crop.

Manpower Plan To Be Announced At Noon Today

District of Columbia Area WMC plans for the stabilizing of labor have been completed, submitted to the Region IV office and approved, R. B. Deschner, area director, announced yesterday.

They will be made public at noon today, the director said.

"The Area WMC committee has worked faithfully the past week to rush completion of the policies which will govern local labor stabilization. This committee deserves a great amount of credit," Deschner said.

The plans are printed and ready for distribution today, said Deschner.

However it was known that the area plan must conform with plans already outlined for Region IV, which embraces the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

The Gallup Poll

Australians Vote to Lease Naval-Air Bases To United States After War, Survey Finds

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., May 21.—The extent to which Australians are looking to the United States for armed support fater the war as well as at present is revealed in a public opinion survey completed this week throughout Australia and scheduled to be reported in Commonwealth newspapers tomorrow.

The survey shows that the overwhelming majority of people in that large unit of the British Empire are in favor of granting bases in Australia to the American Navy and air forces after the war.

The preponderant opinion is that such bases should be leased for a limited period, say 25 years, but nearly one-fourth of the Australian population is willing to see American occupation of strategic bases become permanent.

The views of the Australian public were sounded by Australian Public Opinion Polls, an affiliate of the American Institute of Public Opinion. The polls, which have been conducted at regular intervals for nearly two years, are sponsored by the Melbourne Herald, the Sydney Sun and four other leading Commonwealth dailies.

Opinion concerning post-war bases was sounded on the following issue:

"Would you favor or oppose letting the United States Navy and Air Forces use bases in Australia after the war?"

|---|---|
| Favor | 77% |
| Oppose | 15 |
| Undecided | 8 |

Those who indicated themselves in favor of such a move were asked:

"Should this right be granted permanently, or should bases be leased for a limited period, say 25 years?"

|---|---|
| Permanently | 23% |
| Limited period | 47 |
| Undecided | 7 |
| | 77% |

When the fall of Singapore and the British East Indies left Australia with no substantial help from Britain, many Australians argued that the Commonwealth should identify her interests more or less permanently with the United States.

Today's survey results indicate that Australian opinion is still tending in that direction, despite the growth of British naval and air power since Singapore fell.

While Australians look beyond their borders for aid, public opinion in the Commonwealth is nevertheless anxious to see that Australia does her own part, particularly in the training of her youth for war.

In that respect Australians are willing to go much farther than the United States has gone. Whereas American young men are not subject to compulsory military service until the age of 18, the great majority of voters in the Commonwealth believe their government should adopt military training of youths 16 and 17 years of age.

"Should compulsory cadet training of youths of 16 and 17 begin immediately?"

|---|---|
| Yes | 79% |
| No | 16 |
| Undecided | 5 |

Landlords Assail OPA Rent Control

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

Charges that OPA investigators are "going around ringing doorbells" in Arlington and Alexandria to solicit rent complaints were hurled before the Smith House Committee investigating executive agencies yesterday.

In a session highlighted with everything from rebel yells to information on the amount of rent Comdr. James J. (Gene) Tunney pays for an Arlington home, N. C. Hines of Arlington, president of the Alexandria-Arlington-Fairfax Real Estate Board, said the board had formally requested the dismissal of Paul Porter, deputy director of OPA in charge of rent control and I. Chance Buchanan, Alexandria area OPA director.

The afternoon session, full of vitrolic complaints against OPA's handling of the rent control session, was in sharp contrast to the morning session, which developed nothing but praise for the actions of the District Rent Control Administration which operates independently of OPA.

Lusk Testifies

"The worst thing that could happen to the District would be to come under OPA rent control," Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association and Washington representative of the National Home Builders Association, told the committee.

Asserting that the District act had functioned extremely well, Lusk said that Washington's rent regulations are fair and simply phrased in contrast to the lengthy "garbled" directives of OPA.

District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell told the committee that the best evidence of the fair and impartial administration of the act is the remarkably few cases which have been taken to court."

Cogswell said that in 1942 a total of 12,276 formal complaints were made to his office, and more than 10,000 of these were settled amicably by conferences between tenant and landlord using the friendly offices of the District Rent Control Administration.

Only 346 decisions made by examiners from his office were appealed to the administrator here, Cogswell said, and of these only 34 were appealed to the courts. The courts sustained his decisions in every one of these cases, Cogswell said.

Resolution Adopted

The resolution adopted by the real estate board April 24 charged that the area rent control in Arlington and Fairfax Counties and Alexandria City "has reached the point of confiscation and control of private property without trial or due process of law." It also charged officials with lack of knowledge of local conditions, and "a willful policy to reduce rents regardless of circumstances."

One outstanding case cited was that of an Army officer, whose name was withheld, it was said, because of its military connections, who had bought 12 houses so that his mother might have an income assured her. Rentals on his properties were cut by OPA, it was asserted, after he went into service below the carrying costs on the property so that he now has to send his mother funds to meet notes on the property. The mother told the committee that as soon as one of his properties becomes vacant she closes it, refuses to rent it, thus contributing to the housing shortage because she can't afford to rent it.

Colmer Acts To Tighten Up Antistrike Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Stiffening of the already tight Connally-Smith antistrike bill to provide criminal penalties for "conspiracy" to strike was proposed yesterday, as sponsors of the far-reaching measure moved for House action late next week.

Representative William M. Colmer (Democrat) of Mississippi, Rules Committee manager of the bill, will oeffr an amendment to punish any who "conspire" to call a walkout or a slowdown in war industries.

Colmer, who talked over his amendment with Chairman Andrew May of the House Military Committee and Representative Howard Smith (Democrat) of Virginia, chief House author of the bill, said he was interested only in punishing "strike leaders" and no individual strikers. His amendment would impose maximum penalties of $5000 or one year in jail. The Connally bill imposes similar penalties, but confines punishment to those who lead strikes in Government-owned plants.

Serious cracks in Republican support for the bill meanwhile were reported, with at least one influential House minority member seeking modifications. Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican) of Illinois said he could not support the bill in its present form. Dirksen said he would offer amendments "to make it a better bill."

Opposition to consideration at this time also was reported to have developed among some Rules Committee Republicans, who originally voted a green light for the bill. Any widespread Republican defection could either doom or rewrite the legislation in a House almost evenly divided party-wise.

Gasless Weekend

Supplies Waning Fast

District motorists, along with most of the Eastern seaboard, yesterday were faced with the prospect of a week-end afoot as gasoline dealers on all sides of the city reported that their supplies will not lost through today.

Meanwhile, Government officials were sharply at odds concerning the most efficient manner to cope with the gasoline famine threatening food production in the East. The Department of Agriculture called for either temporary cancellation or reissuance on a more selective basis of A, B and C books along part of the Atlantic Coast line, but OPA rejected the plan.

A spokesman for the Standard Oil Co. told a Post reporter that "we and our competitiors have had to draw so heavily on our limited supply today that it will be gone by tomorrow morning." No shipment to Washington are even expected, he declared, until some time Monday—"we hope early Monday morning, but we have no way of knowing that."

Medical Group Issues Plea

The District Medical Society yesterday made an appeal for gasoline so that physicians may continue their practice.

Theodore Wiprud, secretary of the society, said that many physicians are finding it increasingly difficult to visit patients because of the shortage and that the situation promises to become acute. He said one physician made his calls yesterday by streetcar while another vainly visited 11 stations for gasoline.

"The potential hazard to patients when doctors cannot make calls promptly is obvious," Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, president, said. "A number of doctors, I am informed, have a limited supply of gasoline in their tanks and others are completely out. No assurance has been given us by officials when gasoline will be available to meet the needs. There are some stations which have a limited supply.

"Until such time as fuel authorities can remedy the situation, I appeal to them to give physicians what gasoline they can."

Capital Transit Unworried

A Capital Transit Co. official said "our requirements are about 25,000 gallons daily, but this figure is considerably reduced on Sundays, so that we have no apprehension at the moment," he asserted. "We figure that our buses will be able to get along until new shipments of gas come in on Monday."

Harry Davis, president of the Diamond Cab Co., reported that there was sufficient fuel remaining in the company's underground tanks to continue deliveries to taxis until 10 a. m. today.

The OPA plans to meet the emergency by rigorous enforcement of the nonessential driving ban in the East, and some curtailment of fuel for T coupons alloted to taxis, trucks and other commercial vehicles.

Reports Alarming

The proposal to put noncommercial motorists back on a shoe-leather basis came as a result of alarming reports of the stranding of farm tractors and other machinery essential to food crop production due to lack of fuel, particularly in the Northeastern States.

The OPA declared that elimination of A, B and C allotments even temporarily would not only lead to shut-downs in ship yards and other war plants, but "would keep doctors off the roads." Public transportation systems are incapable of absorbing the additional load that would be thrown upon them, it was said.

"As far as OPA is concerned, no curtailment of A, B and C rations is contemplated now," a spokesman said.

Solution Sought

Meetings are continuing between officials of OPA, ODT and the Petroleum Administration for War for solution of the emergency.

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Force, gave Chief Attorney John L. Laskey of the District OPA assurance of the "complete cooperation" of the force in checking automobiles at places of amusement. A bulletin giving complete instructions was issued immediately to all stations, and officers also were ordered to go into Maryland to investigate appearances of District cars at country clubs, with the aid of the Maryland OPA.

Subsidies Opposed

House Defeats Farm-Aid Measure

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday demonstrated in unmistakable fashion its overwhelming opposition to the use of agricultural subsidies as weapons against inflation as it sent to the Senate with only four opposition votes a new appropriation of more than six and a quarter billion dollars for lend-lease.

By a recorded vote of 214 to 96 the chamber attached to the measure an amendment denying to President Roosevelt the right to use any of the money in the bill for the payment of farm subsidies.

In the only surprise of its one-day consideration of the legislation, the House voted the amendment after informed by Representative Taber (Republican) of New York that he had been advised by Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, jr., in a telephone conversation that it was the intention of the Administration to use some of the money to pay subsidies.

The action assumed especial significance in view of the following circumstances:

1. The House Banking and Currency Committee is conducting hearings on legislation to add one billion dollars to the borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corp. to permit continuation of subsidies on canned vegetables and coffee and other loan and subsidy programs.

2. Pending in Congress is the request of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. for an additional five billion dollars in borrowing authority. Recently Price Administrator Prentiss Brown announced a preliminary program for subsidizing meat, butter and coffee processors with RFC funds.

Indicative of the conclusive character of the test vote on subsidies was the manner in which members of the Banking Committee voted on the Taber amendment. Eight Republicans and three Democrats, including Committee Chairman Steagall of Alabama, voted for it. Six Democrats and one Progressive on the committee voted "no."

Seven members of the committee did not vote. two of them were Republicans who, in view of the solid minority party alignment in favor of the amendment, could be expected to vote against subsidy proposals. If such should prove to be the case in an actual committee vote, the score in the 25-man body would be 13 to 12 against subsidies.

In a real committee test, however, opposition to a subsidy program could be expected to be considerably stronger, as several Democrats are believed to have voted against the Taber amendment on technical grounds.

The House vote was 309 to 4 on the lend-lease bill which would add $6,273,629,000 to Allies-aid funds and bring the total of direct appropriations for this purpose to $24,683,629,000. Opposition votes were cast by Republican Representatives Crawford of Michigan, Jones of Ohio, O'Hara of Minnesota and O'Konski of Wisconsin.

In contrast to previous lend-lease appropriations which carried large sums for munitions procurement, the new measure, fourth of its kind to move through the House, would make no provision for ordnance and aircraft but would appropriate over 4½ billions for agricultural and industrial commodities.

U. S. Bought 21,329 Cows as Dairy Aid

As a result of its efforts to prevent dairy cattle being sold for beef, the Commodity Credit Corporation has purchased 21,329 cows and calves and resold them at a loss of about $270,000, J. B. Hutson, CCC president, yesterday told the House Committee on Banking and Currency.

Hutson outlined the plan's mechanics as typical of those in the agricultural "subsidy" programs, that would be carried on should the CCC be extended and its borrowing power increased by one billion dollars.

Dairy cows were being sold for beef because beef prices had soared under wartime buying conditions, while milk prices had not advanced, Hutson said. Other factors in the sales, he pointed out, were the high price of feed and scarcity of dairy workers.

The CCC found new homes for the cattle, he said, and thereby helped keep up milk production.

"We bought them at beef cattle prices and resold them at the lower figure," he said.

Postwar Food Relief Soon To Be Studied, Acheson Says

By Wade Werner
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hot Springs, Va., May 21—Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson, visiting the United Nations Food Conference, assured delegates informally today that a conference soon will be called to deal with the problem of relief and rehabilitation of war-torn areas.

The food conference agenda specifically excludes relief, dealing only with questions of food consumption, production and distribution in the postwar world economy. Various delegations, however, in press conferences, statements and informal discussion, have stressed the urgency of relief.

Acheson was asked by reporters whether misunderstandings among delegates here over the exclusion of relief had made his visit necessary. He replied that he had heard in Washington that there was "some confusion" on this matter among delegates here, but in the few hours since his arrival had not found any.

He stressed, however, that the Government of the United States fully recognizes the urgency of dealing with relief. No date has been set as yet, he said, for such a meeting, but preliminary preparations have been under way for some time.

The long-range postwar problems on the conference agenda got little attention at the first press conference held by the French delegation today. Herve Alphand, the delegation's chairman, stressed the systematic efforts which he said are being made by the Nazis to "feed Germany and starve France." The per capita food ration in France has been lowered to 1100 calories daily, he asserted—less than half of the minimum required for normal health and little more than one-third of the prewar per capita ration.

He appealed for quick reestablishment of agricultural productivity in France after liberation of the country from German occupation, so that France in turn may help in feeding other starving peoples released from Nazi domination.

Cathedral To Hold Service For War Dead

The annual massing of the colors service in memory of Americans who have given their lives for their country will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m. in the amphitheatre of Washington Cathedral, with Ralph A. Bard, assistant secretary of the Navy, as guest speaker.

Sponsored jointly by the District of Columbia chapter of the Military Order of the World War and Washington Cathedral, it will honor Americans who have died in this war, and special tribute will be paid to Chaplain Frank L. Miller of Washington who lost his life in the recent plane crash in Iceland.

Representatives of more than 200 military, veteran and patriotic organizations in the District will participate in tomorrow's service. Wearing uniforms and carrying banners and flags identifying their organizations, they will march in procession with the cathedral choir and clergy from the assembly area, down the Pilgrim Steps and into the amphitheatre where they will take their places before the altar. This colorful procession, which will be larger this year than in the past, is said to be unsurpassed by any similar ceremony in this country and abroad.

For a 30-minute period prior to the procession, the United States Marine Band will play patriotic music under the direction of Capt. William F. Santelmann. Music for the service will be sung by the cathedral choir of men and boys under the direction of Ellis C. Varley, acting organist and choirmaster.

Also participating will be Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, who will introduce the speaker.

Dr. Kershner To Speak at Friends Parley

A first-hand account of starvation among children in Nazi-dominated countries will be given tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Friends Meeting of Washington, 2111 Florida Avenue Northwest, by Howard E. Kershner, executive vice president and director of International Commission for the Assistance of Child Refugees.

DR. KERSHNER

He has recently returned from Europe, where he served for three years as director of relief for the American Friends Service Committee. One of the best informed men in America on famine conditions in Europe, Dr. Kershner had charge of feeding hundreds of thousands of children while forced to witness the distress and suffering of millions more. The relief work he administered was officially supported by grants from 24 governments who cooperated in this humanitarian service.

He will address the Ministerial Union of Washington at the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets, Monday at 11:15 a. m. ## Lutherans Set For World Action Drive

Lutheran churches of the Washington area tomorrow will accept special offerings for "Lutheran World Action." Similar offerings will be received throughout America in all congregations of the United Lutheran Church of America, the American Lutheran Church, the Augustana Lutheran Church, the Norwegian Lutheran Church, the Icelandic Lutheran Synod and the Danish Free Church, all of which comprise the National Lutheran Council, the general agency through which most of the Lutherans of America operate.

TABOR

"Lutheran World Action" has set as its goal one million dollars to be received this Sunday, though an unofficial goal of two million dollars is being striven for.

One half of the funds received will be allocated to the Lutheran Service Communion for the establishment of Lutheran service centers, manned by Lutheran service chaplains, in and around Army and Navy camps. At the present time 32 such organizations are functioning.

A second project which will receive approximately one-fourth of the funds from the drive is the "war-orphaned mission project.

A third project is the establishment of temporary congregations in the defense-housing areas, such as in Baltimore and Detroit. Defense chaplains and parish workers are supplied. Recently Glenn L. Martin, president of the Martin Airplane Factories of Baltimore has reported to the National Lutheran Council that absenteeism dropped 70 per cent in the area in which Lutheran World Action has placed the Rev. Orville Lueck as defense chaplain.

Other projects that will be helped by the Lutheran World Action appeal are prisoner's aid, refugee aid, the American Bible Society.

The Rev. Ralph Tabor, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Lutheran Church, has directed the Lutheran World Action campaign in the United Lutheran Churches of America. The Rev. Ralph W. Loew, associate pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Reformation and the Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer, pastor of the Takoma Lutheran Church, have directed the local appeal among the United and American Lutheran Churches of Washington and Baltimore.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

The Philadelphia story is still the best thing to come out of the major league pennant races. The Phils, under new ownership and new management, are causing more talk than any other club. They're a Phoenix out of the ashes of what used to be the phewtile Phils.

POVICH

They've already drawn more than 130,000 customers to their home games. By Sunday night, the chances are very good that the Phillies, in the first five weeks of the 1943 season, will have attracted more than the 220,000 customers who saw them play at home last year.

All of which makes an amazing prophet of Branch Rickey. When the National League was trying to peddle the Phils' franchise last winter after foreclosing on Gerald Nugent, Rickey helped to plug the sale. The general manager of the Dodgers, who has a reputation of being baseball's most astute businessman, declared flatly that "The Phils are a great buy at the price they're asking and in a year when fans have plenty of money to spend for ball games. Nobody knows, either, which will be the strong or the weak teams."

In clover are young Bill Cox, the 33-year-old promoter who rounded up the dough to buy the Phils, and Bucky Harris, who bids to be the Manager of the Year if the Phils finish even as high as fifth.

Harris has them up there now in fourth place, and that's downright sensational for the Phils. Not only that, but there hasn't been anything fluky in the Phils' successes. They've been winning because they've been getting well-pitched games, hitting the ball and generally disporting themselves like a good ball club.

It's easy enough to see how the Phils, even as a fifth-place club, could crowd the A's out of the picture in Philadelphia. Unless the A's get into the first division, which is exceedingly unlikely, the Phils will be the town's favorites. Because the Phils this year have romance. After being kicked around for more than 20 years, they are playing winning baseball all of a sudden. It's the old underdog appeal.

Philadelphia fans are ready to believe now that they're getting a new deal in the case of the Phils. They had reason to quit on the old Phillies, whose owners helped pay their own fat salaries by sloughing off the few stars the club developed to richer teams for cash payments. There couldn't be much faith that Philly fans would ever get to see a winner, unless it was the visiting club.

Bucky Harris has been doing all right for himself. When he was with the Washington club, he always yearned to have some voice in which players could be bought or sold, but the authority to make transactions was never his. At Philadelphia he can speak out, and every deal made by Owner Cox has been on Harris' advice.

The deals Harris has swung, with Cox's sanction, have made the Phils. When young Harold Fuchs, Harris' rookie right-hander, shut out the Cubs with four hits on Thursday it was only the latest bit of evidence as to Harris' astute dealing. Harris claimed Fuchs from the Detroit Tigers when that team put him on the waiver list early in April. Bucky was amazed that the Tigers would ask waivers on a pitcher who, to him, always seemed to have a lot of stuff. That four-hit shutout must have been gratifying to Bucky.

For most of the ten years that Babe Dahlgren was in the American and National Leagues, managers had labeled him as a first baseman, and a good one. His batting average wasn't much, but he hit a long ball. Harris grabbed Dahlgren at the first chance to buy him and installed Babe not as the Phils' first baseman but as the team's shortstop. Dahlgren has been a key man in the Phils' club, and against the weaker pitching in the league, he is hitting more than .350.

As a result of the spectacular success of the Phils, Harris is more honored in Philadelphia than he was in Washington. They think he's something of a miracle man, as indeed, he may be. Even the games that the Phils have lost have found them in there scrapping for runs. The defeatist complex has vanished from the Phils.

In another year, the presence of the Phils in the first division at this stage of the race might not be too exciting, because the Phils would always descend to their true level. But this year the true level of the Phils could very easily be the first division, because they're a stronger club in a league that is generally weaker.

Griffith Considering Signing 'Lefty' Gomez

A near member of the Nats is Lefty Gomez, wise-cracking veteran of Yankee pitching staffs, who last week was released unconditionally by the Boston Braves.

Gomez is dickering with President Clark Griffith of the Nats for a job with the Washington Club and has been invited to come to Griffith Stadium for a tryout tomorrow.

Griffith is wary of Gomez's pitching arm, which has seen 12 years service in the American League, and as yet has not offered the left-hander any salary terms.

"I'll look him over and if we can agree on salary I may sign Gomez," said Griffith cautiously.

Gomez signed with the Boston Braves as a free agent last winter after being released by the Yankees. He did not figure in any games this year for the Boston club which has been getting excellent pitching from other members of the staff.

Last season with the Yankees, Gomez won six games and lost four, but he was forced to call for help from relief pitchers in most of his starts.

The Nats, whose own relief pitching this season has been dismal, apparently vision Gomez as a help in that department inasmuch as there is no lack of starters on the Washington staff.

The 32-year-old Gomez came into the American League from the Coast League in 1930 and after being sent to St. Paul for seasoning by the Yankees, came back to the New York club to commence a brilliant pitching career in the majors.

His fast ball was one of the most effective weapons among American League pitchers, but in recent years Gomez has been relying on a curve and change of pace. After suffering a sore arm in 1940 when he won only three games, he came back with a brilliant season in 1941 when he won 15 and lost only five for the Yankees.

Gomez has a lifetime record of 189 victories against 97 defeats in the majors and has pitched and won six world series games without a defeat.

He has been selected on the American League All-Star team five times, with a record of three victories and one defeat in All-Star games against the National League.

In the event the Nats sign Gomez, Manager Ossie Bluege will be forced to release a player to cut his squad to the 25-man limit. Rookie Catcher Red Barbary or Infielder Sherrard Robertson may be cut loose. In fact, with the recall of Rookie Infielder Joe Jacobs, both Barbary and Robertson may be sent out.

Bob Montgomery Beats Beau Jack for Title

Philadelphia Negro Rallies to Win 10 of 15 Rounds Before 18,343 Fans

By Caswell Adams
International News Service Sports Writer

New York, May 21.—A flash in the pan passed in the night at Madison Square Garden tonight when stubby Beau Jack lost his lightweight championship to Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia.

Beau had acquired his New York State legality to the title through action of the boxing moguls, but he lost it in the ring, and there wasn't a dissenting voice in the crowd of 18,343 or in the astute minds of the officials who gave Montgomery the decision. The gate was an almost incredible $94,500.78.

It was late last autumn that Beau Jack took the title because he beat such as Allie Stolz and Tippy Larkin while Sammy Angott was busy abdicating and then trying to remount the throne. Since then Jack had humbled Fritzie Zivic a couple of times and in the last fight in the Garden, before the elephants and clowns and trapeze artists moved in for seven weeks, had trimmed the great Henry Armstrong.

Could Punch and Jab

But tonight he wasn't up against an aged fighter; he was in there with a well conditioned and lithe Negro, who could punch and who could jab.

The result of this meeting was that Beau Jack won only five of the 15 rounds, the others going to Montgomery.

The Beau wound up with two closed eyes, a bloody nose, which bled from the first inning on, a cut inside the mouth, and an inferiority complex. It is apparent from the second frame on that the youngster knew he was up against something a bit different and he fought accordingly.

The former Georgia bootblack backed up all night long, and let Montgomery take the play away from him. He never moved in his characteristic manner, shifting shoulders and fists to the other man's face. He was careful tonight, and that meant his loss of the bauble.

When Jack won the first round and then the fourth, fifth and sixth, the odds of 5 to 12 favoring him in the lobby looked like money in the bank. But Bobby from Philly won the next seven in a row and the long shot pickers were delirious with joy. Jack managed to escape Montgomery's deadly left hand in the fourteenth, but took another drubbing in the final round and that, on top of a momentary no-count knockdown in the eleventh cost the Georgia boy his title.

Montgomery was better tonight than ever before. He had been

Nats' Bats Lack Real Practice For Long Week

Chicago, May 21.—The Nats have not participated in batting practice since last Friday afternoon, a week ago. They were not permitted their regular batting turn in Detroit on Saturday and Sunday due to the condition of the field, had four consecutive games postponed in St. Louis and even fielding practice was forbidden here tonight due to the heavy going. . . .When George Case stole second base in the first inning it marked the first time this season that he led the league in his specialty. It was number five, to four for Mickey Vernon. . . . Alex Kampouris, who will join the Nats in Washington, is said to be a long ball hitter, when he connects, by the Nats who played against him in the minors. . . . Lee Hanski, the Chisox rookie hurler, was presented with a gift before game time by admirers from Worth, Ill.

Reb Barbary, the Reds' third-string catcher, asked for his mail in a quiet tone upon arriving in Chicago, as he expected his notice to report for a physical. . . . Best crack concerning the last-place Cubs by the Chicago scribes, who are sparing no words, was the one that they were scheduled to open a series in Boston "if they aren't taken off the trains as nonessential." . . . The postponements of the past week in the American League were the worst in 12 years, according to Earl Hilligan, chief of the A. L. Service Bureau. . . . Ewald Pyle will face the Chisox tomorrow afternoon with Ed Smith as his mound opponent. The Nats conclude the series with two games Sunday.

Terps Play Blue Jays Today In Crucial Lacrosse Game

The University of Maryland lacrosse team closes its season today against the Johns Hopkins ten at College Park in a clash which will have a decided bearing on the national championhip. Both aggregations need the game to keep them in the race for national honors, which will be decided when the national lacrosse board meets in Baltimore June 4 to award the title. The winner of today's clash will go into a tie with Navy. Game time is 3:15 p. m.

Both the Terps and the Jays have lost only one game out of seven, each bowing to the Midshipmen, who is turn were trounced by Princeton. Last spring Hopkins defeated the College Parkers, who retaliated later in the summer with a pair of victories over the Baltimore team.

Much attention this week has been given by Maryland's mentor, Al Heagy, to the development of a defense against Tommy Zink and Henely Guild, the Blue Jay's top scorers of the season with 20 and 17 goals respectively. However, information from Baltimore reveals that Zink and Bud Kaestner, another regular, may be out of the fray due to ankle injuries. Zink has just recently discarded crutches and is a better bet than his teammate to see action.

Johns Hopkins has outscored Maryland during the season, 83 to 73, while both clubs have limited the opposition to 28 goals.

Probable lacrosse line-ups:

Humphries Out-Pitches Leonard

Sox Hurler Helps to Win Own Game With Two-Bagger; Scores On Tucker's Single

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
Post Staff Writer

Chicago, May 21.—The Nats finally got around to playing a ball game tonight, but they didn't get around to making a run and lost, 1-0, to the White Sox before 8467 fans under the lights of Comiskey Park.

Johnny Humphries, a big right-hander who allowed one run over a 24-inning stretch earlier in the season, pitched a superb three-ht game and scored the only run after opening the fifth inning with a long double off the right-field boxes.

Dutch Leonard was the loser but please don't start feeling sorry for Leonard. The Nats didn't get him a run, it's true, but he was charmed that the Sox didn't get more than one as they pounded out nine solid hits in Dutch's seven-inning turn and several of their outs were line drives to the infield and outfield.

In five of the first six innings the first Chisox batter got a hit but they scored only in the fifth, when Humphries took third on Jake Early's wild throw attempting to pick him off second and scored on Thurman Tucker's single to center, with none out.

The Nats went down in order in five of the last six innings, which is no way to win a ball game. In the seventh Bob Johnson drew a walk with none out but with no thought of a sacrifice, Stan Spence, the league's leader at runs batted in despite a .180 average, promptly drilled into a double play. Gerry Priddy followed with a single, which is nuf said.

The Nats packed their other two hits into the third inning, with two out. Ellis Clary singled to left and George Case smashed a liner to center, sending Clary to third. Mickey Vernon's response on a 3-2 count was a pop fly to second.

Case's Steal Futile

The only other Washington player to reach base was George Case who walked and stole second in the first inning. The Nats' attack reached its depths in the eighth when George Myatt, batting for Leonard, took a second and third called strike with his bat snuggled on his shoulder.

The White Sox were wastrels with their hits but with Humphries in complete control they could afford to be.

The Sox didn't score in the first despite a single by Tucker and a walk to Joe Kuhel, and in the second Wally Moses and Tom Turner both singled but were forced at second. Tucker also led off the third with a single and Tom Grant connected for a one-baser in the fourth but Leonard tightened in the pinches.

Spence cut down Don Kolloway in the sixth with a perfect throw to Priddy which nipped Kolloway trying to stretch a hit. Kuhel doubled with two down in the seventh, but was stranded and the Chisox went down in order, for the first time, in the eighth inning after Mickey Haefner had taken the mound for the Nats.

Humphries who won and lost 12 for the White Sox last year, walked only one batter and fanned three. The victory was his third against two defeats, while the loss left Leonard with a like record.

The defeat dropped the Nats to third place, four percentage points behind the Indians.

So enthusiastic were Lew Hanbury's followers when he decisively whipped Jackie Callura, N. B. A. featherweight champ, last night at Uline Arena, several score of them rushed into the ring and raised Lew to their shoulders in glee. Today, Hanbury is back at work on his war job at the Navy Yard, but last night he beat a champion

Hanbury Out-Punches Champ Callura to Win

Local Lightweight Surprises District Fans by Slugging Victory in Big Upset

By Al Costello
Post Staff Writer

What couldn't possibly happen did last night at Uline Arena as Washington's 19-year-old Lew Hanbury pounded out a 10-round victory over N. B. A. Featherweight Champion Jackie Callura in one of the most amazing ring upsets in District history. There wasn't a single doubt of it. Hanbury won from here to Jackie's home town of Hamilton, Ontario, and back again. The decision was unanimous and rightly so. On The Post score sheet, Hanbury won seven rounds, totaling 96 points. Callura was on top, by generous scoring, in three rounds and amassed 86 points.

As soon as the gong sounded ending the fight, Hanbury's legion of follows rushed to his corner, awaiting the decision that would pronounce Lew as victor over the world champion. When it did come, several score of them rushed into the ring and hoisted the victorious Hanbury to their shoulders. In fact, the coolest and least surprised person in the place was Hanbury, who took it without too much surprise.

Among the Best

It was perhaps the greatest featherweight fight ever fought here, including those momentous battles when Petey Sarron and Joey Archibald were setting local rings afire. The paid attendance was 2019 with receipts $2976.

For Hanbury, it was the most important fight of his brief career, barely a year old, and which has now seen him victorious in 10 of 12 previous matches. His thirteenth fight was his greatest and by no means his luckiest. He earned every bit of it.

Callaura, a rough boy whose only ring knowledge is to mix it and slug it out, more than met his match. He tried to bull Lew around. Lew wouldn't be bulled and outroughed the champ. When Jackie butted Lew several times, Lew made no bones about it but butter right back in plain sight of everybody, drawing a warning from Referee Marty Gallagher once in the fifth round.

Outslugged Champ

Lew was slightly wonderful. He outboxed, outfought and outslugged the champion. He landed more and harder punches from the second round right down to the very finish and was throwing everything he had at the end in hopes of a knockout that escaped him.

An assist must be given to Heinie Blaustein, veteran Baltimore fight manager and handler who once managed the Dundees and Bobby Garcia. When Hanbury's eye continued to bleed throughout the second, third and fourth rounds, Lew Hanbury, sr., father of the scrapper, called in Blaustein to heal it. Blaustein did a remarkable job stopping the blood and possibly prevented the fight from being stopped.

As early as the first round, Lew was slightly in trouble. Callura, rushing out as if to take command, opened a cut over Lew's left eye. But Hanbury shook it off in disdain and was trading punches at the bell. Outside of the third round, which Callura won by a narrow margin, Lew went into high gear and showed himself to be the complete boss. In the second he stag-

Tigers Beat Bosox in 13th, 2-1 on Error

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 21.—The Detroit Tigers, playing their seventh extra inning game of the season, pushed home a run in the thirteenth frame today to defeat the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 1, in the opener of a four-game series.

With two out in the thirteenth, Tony Lupien muffed Joe Hoover's popfly for a two-base error and Roger Cramer lined a single to right field to score Hoover. Rangy Tex Hughson, who scattered seven hits, suffered his second 1943 defeat, and Lefty Hal Newhouser, who yielded nine hits and fanned 10, gained his first victory.

Two walks, a single and a passed ball produced the lone Boston run in the first. Dick Wakefield and Ned Harris put together doubles for Detroit's run in the fourth.

The game was notable in that the Tigers sent up a pinch hitter in the ninth frame for Rudy York, their big slugger. Rip Radcliff replaced big Rudy, was passed intentionally, and finished out the game at first base.

A's Nose Out Browns, 2 to 1, On Fluke Play

By International News Service

St. Louis, May 21.—The Philadelphia Athletics tonight nosed out the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 1, on a fluke play to ruin a masterful pitching performance by Johnny Niggeling.

Held hitless by Niggeling for seven innings, Irving Hall, rookie infielder, spoiled his bid for fame in the eighth inning with a clean single to left field.

Elmer Valo opened the ninth with the second and final hit off the veteran knuckleballer and Joe White walked. Eddie Mayo sacrificed the runners along and, after Bobby Estalella was purposely passed, Valo scored on Dick Siebert's long fly to center.

Peter Suder had a count of two and two when Niggeling threw one of his specialties. Suder swung and missed and the ball got away from Rick Ferrell, rolling to the screen back of the plate and White scored easily.

Charlene Beats Favorite in Charles Town Feature Race

Time Play Is Second, Track Slow

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Charles Town, W. Va., May 21.—Taken to the front by Jockey Patsy Grant in the opening furlong, Mrs. G. O. Russell's Charlene led thereafter and won the fifth race, first event of the season here over the mile and an eighth course. The crowd installed J. L. Friedman's Time Play as the favorite and this son of Playtime was second, beaten 2½ lengths. Third money in the field of six went to Mrs. George Fox's Sir Reg.

Charlene, winner of 4 races in 26 tries last year, triumphed today in her fifth outing of 1943. She had only a scattered backing and returned $19.80 for each deuce investment. The track was muddy as the result of heavy downpours last night and today. Charlene was clocked in 2:00 4-5.

Gendarme set the pace coming out of the starting gate but lost whatever chance he had when he ran out entering the stretch the first time. Charlene then took up the front running and, aside from a slight challenge from the favored Time Play, had things her own way thereafter. Grant, however, took no chances and kept the winner to a hand drive to the end.

In the second best offering of the afternoon, Wayne Kendrick's Honeymaid galloped along in front and turned back five other sprinters in the sixth race. Ridden by Jockey Leon Garrett, Honeymaid won by four lengths with W. C. Bell's Oddree second and L. R. Colbert's Time Her third. The winner paid $4.80.

Jockey Buddy Root continued his sensational riding. He was up on both winners in the daily double, which paid $20.60. G. A. Barrett's Brocade won the opener at $7 and C. Taylor Chewning's Tacaro Ginny took the second at $6.80. Root made it three winners for the day in the seventh race aboard the Shenandoah Stable's Fair Flame, an $8.20 shot.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Office of Lend-Lease Gets Pat on the Back

Former Representative Bill Schulte, a New Deal leader in the House before his defeat last year, is selling war bonds for the Treasury while he awaits his chance to run for Congress again next year. . . . Interior's Bituminuous Coal Division will run out of money Tuesday. Congress has been asked to act swiftly to provide an appropriation to continue its activities intact until August 24. . . . Office of Lend-Lease was given a kindly pat on the back yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee when it reported its 1944 appropriation. "Lend-Lease is a small, compact organization with about 600 employes," the committee said in part. "Its policy-making, supervisory, and coordinating functions are carried out through full utilization of existing governmental agencies . . . it has been possible to avoid duplication."

The Government soon will announce a plan to sell miners and other heavy industry workers additional meat without its costing them ration points. And the meat will be sold at cost . . . This is a cold and realistic report on the pay raise prospects for the 6000 Government Printing Office employes: The Joint Congressional Committee on Printing has been plied with so much testimony and written matter that several members are somewhat confused and they have asked for time to study the case further. Unless the unexpected happens, it's going to be sometime yet before the committee makes a decision and the chances of getting a pay raise are no more than 50-50 . . . OPA's rent section has received 400,000 petitions from landlords and it has approved higher rents in 40 per cent of the cases.

The Ramspeck Committee yesterday called Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming on the carpet to explain this puzzle: Budget Director Harold D. Smith last week testified that he had ordered Federal agencies to cut 41,631 employes off the payroll. The Civil Service reported that only 5287 had been separated. What accounted for the difference? Well, Flemming told the committee that agencies had shifted "surplus" employes to other bureaus to fill vacancies. He explained further that the Budget Bureau had placed personnel ceilings only on agencies that employ 28 per cent of the three million Federal workers. War and Navy Departments, for example, were hardly affected and they have about 65 per cent of all civilian employes. Moreover, some of the agencies have until June 30 to make their reductions and the normal turnover will prevent many employes from being fired.

Decline in Demand

Flemming, however, noted there had been a sharp decline in the demand for personnel through Civil Service by Federal agencies since the ceilings had been ordered. On February 11, he said, the commission had orders for 317,000 new employes. On May 1, the backlog of orders had been cut down 35 per cent, or 205,000. In March, 240,000 people had been placed on the payroll to fill vacancies and new jobs. In April, only 195,000 jobs were filled. If you're shocked by those huge figures just remember that the average number of monthly placements in the final 1942 quarter was 244,003. The actual monthly increase also has taken a slump, from a high of 114,168 last year to 46,000 during March.

Chairman Ramspeck estimated that his committee had kept Uncle Sam from hiring 300,000 additional employes at a salary cost to the Government of approximately half a billion a year. The Federal population here has been at a standstill for several months and Ramspeck said he wanted the agencies to know that Congress demanded that it be stopped in the field, too. Representative Rees blamed overstaffing on incompetent personnel officers. Flemming layed it to inefficient supervisors who pushed papers instead of spending 95 per cent of their time solving personnel problems. Flemming, however, condemned general attacks on Federal employes. He said it was impossible to maintain morale under such conditions. He was referring, of course, to the screwball draft-dodging and subversive charges which so often emanate from Capitol Hill.

Vice President Wallace brought back many plants and seeds from his South American trip which he is growing in his victory garden . . . Employes at the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs contributed $411 to the GOVERNMENT GIRL warplane campaign. The CIAA was inadvertently omitted from the final compilation published here a few days ago . . . LETTERS: "The plan for Government employes to work an hour longer on May 31 is grand. I'd like to see every employe pitch in and do it." . . . "Whoever thought up that extra-hour-of-work idea for May 31 must have a bad conscience.. It's lousy, a mere gesture. Half the people who stay won't accomplish a thing. Why don't the employes donate a pint of blood to the Red Cross? That's something that will really help the boys overseas." . . . Army Ordnance has under consideration 1400 ideas filtered through the National Inventors Council. Four have been accepted and 41 are up for tests.

Plane Fund Aides Form Organization

White House Staff Employe Named Temporary Chairman; Group Sees Films

Government Girl workers and the Honor Guard of the recent campaign which resulted in presentation of two warplanes to the armed forces last night effected a permanent organization and named Senora Haag, of the White House secretarial staff, temporary chairman.

Eleanor Leech, of the Council of Personnel Administration, was chosen acting secretary.

Views of the presentation ceremony of the two "Government Girl" warplanes—an Army Mustang and a Navy Corsair fighter—were shown during the meeting which was held at the Commerce Department auditorium.

The films, arriving from the New York office of the Fox Movietone Co. at 9:10, were flashed on the screen shortly afterward. Flown to the National Airport, the newsreel was brought to the assembled Government workers by an official of the American Air Lines in order to assure them not being tardy.

More than 250 guards of honor and key workers heard Col. Horace Shelmire tell of the merits of the Mustang and urge the Government workers to continue their efforts.

Is Arnold Aide

Colonel Shelmire is executive aide to Gen. H. H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Forces, and has flown to every fighting front. He was present at the Casablanca meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

The films were presented to The Washington Post by Anthony Muto, Fox Movietone executive at the Capital.

Future activities for the girl Government workers will be decided upon when the honor guard and key workers in the Government Girl contest meet Friday June 4 at 8 p. m.

Present also at the meeting was Agnes Richardy, whose letter to Columnist Jerry Kluttz of The Washington Post resulted in the campaign to purchase the two warplanes by individual dollar contributions which swelled the fund to more than $157,000.

The planes—an outright gift to the Army and Navy—were completely equipped, including armament.

Howard U. Marks 76th Anniversary

Commemorating the seventy-sixth anniversary of the founding of Howard University, the seventeenth annual May Festival was held yesterday on the university terrace, under direction of the department of physical education for women.

Ceremonies included interpretation of the university seal, crowning of the queen, Danish gymnastics, and pageantry, "The Negro in National Defense." A call to the festival was followed by presentation of Dr. Eva B. Dykes, as "Alma Mater," and tribute in song. The seal, "Veritas and Utilitas Deo et Rei Publicae," was given pictorial interpretation and sanction by representatives of the nine schools and colleges.

The Queen of May, Doris Houston Brown, selected by the student body on the basis of character, scholarship, leadership and service, was enthroned and crowned with appropriate ceremony.

Danish gymnastics, as entertainment for the queen and her court, were participated in by 50 coeds. Opportunities for the Negro in national defense portrayed Army representation at the university, the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, the blood bank, nurse and aides, canteen workers, blood donors, engineering, science and management, civilian defense, first aid, life saving, home nursing, child care and the Red Cross Motor Corps.

Included among the production staff were Mrs. Leona B. Dudley, Dean Warner Lawson, Ella Haith Weaver, the maintenance department, the department of military science and tactics and the department of home economics.

District, Virginia Soldiers Decorated

Master Sergt. James H. Daddysman of Washington and Corpl. Henry S. Herr of Alexandria, Va., were included in a group of Army Air Forces personnel decorated for antisubmarine patrol flights over the Atlantic Ocean, the War Department announced yesterday.

Daddysman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Daddysman of 537 Seventh Street Southeast, received the Air Medal for more than 200 hours as radio operator. Herr was cited for his service of more than 200 hours as bombardier, while Capt. Rodney Freeman of Fredericksburg, Va., also received the Air Medal, for more than 200 hours as pilot.

WPB Orchestra Shows Good Cooperation in Local Program

Rescreation Unit of Personnel Management presents the War Production Board Orchestra on Friday night in Social Security Auditorium. Conductor: Van Lier Lanning. Soloist: Kurt Hetzel. Program: Overture to "Abu Hassan" (Weber), Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat major (Liszt), Serenade for String Orchestra, Op. 12 (Herbert), "Bataan" (McDonald), "Imbapara" (Fernandez).

With a membership of only 55 players, the War Production Board Orchestra proved itself last evening to be an up-and-coming organization under the leadership of Van Lier Lanning. Having missed its first pair of concerts last month because of other duties, I was unprepared to find so well - drilled a group of amateurs. They play surprisingly well for musicians whose rehearsals are voluntary after the day's work, and one heard very few of the errancies in pitch that afflict the average novice ensemble. They have an excellent cooperative spirit, and of their zest there is no question.

BROWN

The concert began with an unusual item, Weber's overture to his one-act singspiel, "Abu Hassan," composed when he was 24 and still a roving musician looking for permanent employment and hoping for fame. It is a lively piece with pert and humorous themes, cleverly instrumented for brilliant effects, but showing few signs of the poetic talent that was to flower in "Euryanthe," "Der Freischuetz" and "Oberon."

Kurt Hetzel, who is always ready to lend a helping hand to a worthy cause, was the capable soloist in Liszt's E flat major piano concerto. This was a real test of the orchestra's cohesion, particularly in the tricky third movement, and it was passed successfully, though there were moments when one felt that the experienced pianist, as much as the conductor, was preventing a lapse into confusion. Nevertheless, the performance went so spiritedly that congratulations are in order for all concerned.

In the second part of the program Mr. Lanning went all out for novelties. He revived Victor Herbert's neglected Opus 12, a five-movement serenade for strings, which Anton Seidel in 1888 put into the repertoire of the New York Philharmonic. Herbert's 46 light operas have made the public forget that before 1894 he composed a number of orchestral works, including two violoncello concertos. This serenade is so attractive, so melodious, and so skillfully written that, if it were signed Chaikovski instead of Herbert, it would be more ferequently heard. The polonaise is every whit as good as the one in "Evgen Onegin."

Harl McDonald's "Bataan," which is the most impressive piece of American music inspired by the war thus far, was given a careful performance. The work combines effectively the descriptive quality of a tone-poem with the moving motivation of a threnody. Last on the program was the first North American performance of a colorful and rhythmically fascinating study in native Brazilian themes, "Imbapara," by Oscar Lorenzo Fernandez. The score was loaned by the music division of the Pan American Union, and one thanks Mr. Lanning for his initiative in presenting it. Tonight the orchestra will repeat the concert which deserves a good attendance for the encouragement of the players.

Stricter Rule On Buildings' Height Asked

50 Lots Acquired To Help Complete Flood-Control Plans In Watts Branch

A more rigid ruling governing the height of buildings in downtown Washington should be adopted, it was decided yesterday at a joint meeting of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission.

It was pointed out that the present limitation for buildings is 110 feet but with setbacks and other arrangements, buildings can be built to 160 feet in height. Such exceptions make the 110-foot ruling meaningless, Planning Director John Nolen, jr., said.

Norman C. Brown, land purchasing director of the Park and Planning Commission, announced the acquisition of 50 lots to complete the flood control program of Watts Branch, in the Northeast section, which overflows its banks after heavy rains. The flood control project, which would extend the Watts Parkway from Minnesota to Division Avenues, will eliminate the necessity for storm sewers in that section and will save the District one million dollars, Brown reported.

10 Other Lots Acquired

The commission also acquired 10 lots in the Piney Run section between Forty-second Street and Benning Road Northeast, to complete the Piney Branch Parkway, also a flood control project.

Representatives from seven national organizations interested in the development of Washington met with the two units to review the Park and Planning Commission's work of the past 17 years, including prewar plans that have been postponed or modified because of the war, and postwar plans the commission already has worked out.

The erection of an administrative building for the WAVES near the other dormitories at South Indiana Avenue and Potomac Drive was approved. This office would be a two-story L-shaped building, with each wing about 100 by 30 feet.

A wing for the comptroller general's files in the new General Accounting Office building at McLean Gardens also was approved, as was the request for a small firehouse at Arlington Farms.

Memorials and monuments for heroes of the present war should not be considered until the war is over, the two commissions agreed.

The Park and Planning Commission's point is that the placing of memorials should be done in conference with a general plan, and therefore it would be necessary to wait until all of the heroes have been made before selecting sites and monuments—even street names—for them.

Capital Transit Talks on Negro Workers Continue

The discussion yesterday afternoon of alleged discrimination against Negroes by the Capital Transit Co. will be continued, it was announced after a meeting of J. G. Bigelow, labor representative; Ed D. Merrill, for the company, and Lawrence Cramer, FEPC executive secretary, and R. B. Deschner, area WMC director.

Held in the local WMC office, Rochambeau Apartment Building, 815 Connecticut Avenue, the informal session between the four was the result of a recent challenge by Deschner against the FEPC as to their authority to hold a hearing on the matter.

The hearing originally set for May 18 was postponed until June 2, with the announcement of a re-Committee, at which time Msgr. organization of the President's Francis J. Haas was chosen chairman.

Shore Patrolman Frank Bodmer told police that Witcufsky failed to halt after he had fired a warning shot, so he fired again, this time hitting the fleeing marine.

Police said that Bodmer is being held by naval authorities pending further investigation.

Lieut. Champlain, Georgetown Hero, Killed in Action

Lieut. Harry Luther Champlain, Georgetown University alumnus, who survived the sinking of the U. S. S. O'Brien in the South Pacific last September and was cited for his heroism during the battle, has been killed in action, the Navy announced yesterday.

Lieutenant Champlain was listed among 11 casualties, including 7 dead, 1 wounded and 3 missing. The list, which also reported the name of one man whose status has changed from missing to dead and another who was wounded a second time, brings to 24,006 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported since December 7, 1941. The grand total is comprised of 7237 dead, 4696 wounded and 12,073 missing.

Son of Mrs. Mary M. Champlain of 1222 South Thomas Street, Arlington, Va., Lieutenant Champlain was born February 16, 1916, in Altoona, Pa. Illinois in New York.

Water Gate Concerts Start June 13

Will Continue, Three Times Weekly, Through July 21; Funds Are Needed

Washington's symphony season will open at the Potomac Water Gate June 13 and will continue, three times weekly, through July 21, members of the National Symphony Orchestra Association voted yesterday at the annual membership meeting in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

It was pointed out at the meeting, however, that the campaign for funds to maintain the summer concerts still lacks $18,721 of the $115,000 goal.

It was decided that the campaign committee continue its efforts to raise the needed money, and that a special membership meeting be called at a later date to decide if it is possible for the orchestra to continue through its regular winter season. The motion embodying these points was made by Mrs. R. H. Dunlap, member, seconded by Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, honorary vice chairman of the orchestra association, and was unanimously approved by the members present.

Mrs. C. C. Glover, jr., and Archibald MacLeish were elected to the National Symphony's board of directors for a period of three years. The following present members of the board were reelected for an additional three-year period: Mrs. Peter Belin, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Eugene Byrnes, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Charles W. Eliot, 2d, Mrs. Reeve Lewis, Harry G. Meem, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker and Mrs. Edwin M. Watson.

J. P. Hayes, manager of the orchestra, opened the meeting by reading, in the absence of Corcoran Thom, the president's report on the orchestra's activities during the past year. The report of the treasurer, Nelson W. King, which followed, showed a surplus of $515.83. An informal report on the sustaining fund campaign by E. R. Finkenstaedt, vice chairman of the drive, indicated that 1300 who had contributed last year a total of $8347 had not responded to this year's appeal, and that there is a great need of small contributions from a large number of people if the $115,000 goal is to be reached and the orchestra to continue beyond the summer season.

How D. C. Officer Gave His Life To Save Others

VICTOR WALES

Lieut. Victor Wales Twice Sacrificed Chances to Save Self

First Lieut. Victor W. B. Wales, jr. of 2715 Courtland Place Northwest, who gave the two chances to save his own life to two of his men during the landings in North Africa, has been awarded posthumously the Distinguished Service Cross, the War Department announced yesterday.

Aboard a British cutter that had been put out of action off the Algerian coast, Lieutenant Wales, wounded by machine-gun fire, calmly continued assisting other wounded men over the side. Held afloat by a life preserver, he noticed that one of the soldiers had none. Lieutenant Wales gave the man his own and started swimming for shore.

Was Good Swimmer

Hampered by his wounds, the young officer, who had been an excellent swimmer during his student days at Georgetown University, managed to get hold of a floating oar. Aided by the oar, his chances for making shore were substantially increased. But he noticed another soldier struggling nearby. Lieutenant Wales passed the oar to him. By this action, he sacrificed his own life; he could not quite make shore.

Before entering the service from the R. O. T. C., Lieutenant Wales had just graduated at the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University, from which he had obtained his bachelor's degree. He is the son of Col. Victor W. B. Wales, Cavalry, a member of the Headquarters Staff of the Army Ground Forces, who received the D. S. C. at a recent ceremony at the Army War College.

The citation accompanying the medal, authorized by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, stated, "by his courage and coolness under fire, and his consideration for the welfare for others, Lieutenant Wales upheld the highest traditions of the military forces of the United States."

McNair Presents Medal

The medal was presented to Colonel Wales by Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces, who himself was wounded in Africa and is convalescing in Washington.

Colonel Wales' wife was with him at the ceremony. Present also were Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, temporarily commanding Army Ground Forces; Brig. Gen. J. G. Christiansen, chief of staff; Brig. Gen. A. R. Bolling, assistant chief of staff for personnel, and Col. W. L. Mitchell, deputy chief of staff, all of Army Ground Forces Headquarters.

Falling Limb Injures Two as Storm Hits City

One person was seriously injured, another slightly, a dozen trees were blown over, a truck was damaged and sewers were flooded in Washington yesterday afternoon between 3:10 and 3:30 p. m. when a "flash" wind and rainstorm hit the city.

Injured was Manuel Weaver, 14, Negro, of 1232 Union Street Southwest, who is confined to Providence Hospital in a serious condition with a fractured skull, and George H. Howard, 19, Negro, of 428 First Street Southwest, who was treated at the hospital for lacerations of the head and discharged. They were hit by a falling limb in front of 343 I Street Southwest. Roger W. Venable, 26, of 1321 I Street Northeast, reported to police that a tree fell across his truck while he was driving in the 400 block of Eleventh Street Northeast, causing an undetermined amount of damage.

Dr. John J. Quinn, an interne at Sibley Hospital, narrowly escaped drowning at the height of the storm when his 18-foot sailboat capsized in the Potomac River opposite Bolling Field. Quinn said he was forced to swim a quarter of a mile to safety. He lost his trousers, containing $13, his watch, draft card and other personal effects.

Wires were reported down at Second and Portland Streets Southeast and the hatch cover of a boat, the Vigilant, off the 1300 block of Maine Street Southwest was blown off. The boat is said to belong to Harry P. Rea.

Six trees were blown down on the polo field in Potomac Park and the field was barricaded by Park Police.

The Weather Bureau reported that the wind reached a velocity of 50 miles per hour, that .62 inch of rain fell in 20 minutes, and the temperature dropped from 77 degrees to 67 during the storm.

Taxi Hits Child

Thirteen-year-old Alfred H. Haag, 3930 W Street Northwest, suffered abrasions to his ankle when hit by a taxicab at First and B Streets Southeast at lunch time yesterday. He was taken to Providence Hospital by the taxicab which, police say, was driven by Melville W. Childs, 43, 214 Emerson Street Northwest, and admitted for observation.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

When it comes to raising money for war bonds, petite, titian-haired Mrs. Nathan Hurwitz is a whiz. She can originate more schemes in a half hour than most people can figure in three days.

If parties, sales talk or patriotic pleadings fail, she still has two trump cards to play . . . her famous fan and napkin ring collections. So far only the fan collection has been on display for benefits—the napkin rings are in the offing. Besides the pleasure of gathering the third finest and largest collection of fans in the world, Mrs. Hurwitz says that they have more than paid for themselves in contributing to worthy causes.

It all started—still is going on, for that matter—as a hobby. At first she just picked up beautiful fans. Then in order to classify them, she began delving into books to study about them . . . so indirectly she became an expert in international history. But let's take a peek into her collection. For sheer beauty, you can't beat the French ones, collected over the 25-year period she lived in France. Among them you will find priceless ones made of mother of pearl, some with butterflies, others with flowers carefully matched with tortoise shell. These represent the Napoleonic era. Then there is the eighteenth century collection, made with delicate Duchess lace; some with Spanish lace with French miniatures. Also, you will find a group of seventeenth century fans, some Spanish, others English or French. Usually, the family's talents or interests were represented on these. For example, the musical family had fans with couples at the piano, dancing or singing.

Also, you will find various types of fans from China, Japan, Turkey, Spain, Mexico — from every country in the world. Not the least important is the group of early American fans that depict important historic scenes. To mention a few, you'll find several made of turkey feathers; one showing pictures of the sinking of the Maine; another giving the complete voyage of a ship with maps and diagrams.

There are hundreds of fans which Mrs. Hurwitz found in China and Spain, where she has lived.

Among the assortment is one unusual fan that looks like a bunch of violets until you open it. There are flirting fans with a wee mirror at one end to enable milady to keep a watchful eye on her beau.

Not only does the magnificent, international collection of fans serve as revenue getters for war benefits but is a good way of entertaining friends when they drop in. And what with the tight ban on pleasure driving, hostesses are going to have to exercise more ingenuity in home entertaining. On that score, you will find alert, soft-spoken, Mrs. Hurwitz ready, for she is an interesting conversationalist.

Checked Gingham

By Jeanne Contini

In the neighborhood of the Shoreham there is a small shop which should prove a boon to Chevy Chasers and First Alphabeters who find a trip to the downtown stores as long and arduous traveling as crossing the prairies via mail coach.

The lady who makes the place live has a shock of waving gray hair and both feet firmly on the ground. She specializes in simple useful clothes which cost a good deal less than they look and are as difficult to find as good earth in small packages—particularly today, although they are more in demand than ever. The discovery of this type of merchandise is not new to the shop which has built its reputation around clothes that are long line and quality, and short on price.

There is a caviar collection of inexpensive cottons—all sanforized. We sketched a checked gingham which is a number of notches above average in fit and finish. It comes in red, blue or brown and white checks, and costs $4.00.

While you are there, have a look at the short-sleeved black sheer which has an excellent body, and an expensive simplicity to the cut. It wears a pink rose at the waist, so you will recognize it. Don't miss the playsuits. These are beautifully tailored and when you put the skirt around one it honestly looks like a fine shirt-waist dress, and no monkey-business.

Please call NA. 4200, extension 324 and we'll give you the name.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The stammering of the child of 2 to 4 seldom is of lasting significance. Yet, mothers are so upset about this behavior they tend to force stammering on the child by their very efforts to end it.

Children respond speedily to any recognition of noticeable conduct and when we make such conduct exciting by our anxious consideration of it, we may be sure children won't abandon it. They keep on doing whatever annoys or upsets us, just because it does.

Because language is a new tool, the child tends to use it awkwardly. His thoughts outrun his capacity to express them. He finds it fun to experiment with words, lingering over the first syllables or saying "ah-ah-ah" as he used to dawdle over dressing or eating. When he finds his experiments arousing the notice of the family, their repetition becomes thrilling.

Many a parent puts obstacles in the way of nimble speech by loading a child with, too many new and difficult words. Three-syllable words may be a challenge to the child's intelligence, they are also a mammoth burden to his capacity to enunciate.

Why make use of long words when simple ones may be used easily because of constant repetition of them?

The proud parent who wants a show-off child may coach him on rhymes, popular songs, stories to tell, all of which may get admiration and praise from adults but eventually bogs down the child's speech capacities.

The forced use of the right-hand when the left is the natural hand must always be mentioned as an influence on clear speech. Taken altogether there are sufficient reasons enumerated so any parent may recognize the difficulties a small child may encounter in making himself glib in his speech.

Parents should clear away any of these handicaps, both emotional and actual, and then ignore the temporary stammering. They will know if it is temporary by the rapidity with which the child will drop his annoying habit of useless repetition of syllables or words and go back to talking as he did before.

Mrs. W. L. M.: Enforced use of the right hand must be dropped if the child obviously is left-handed and tends to take objects or to work with his left hand. Don't however, jump to the conclusion that he must be left-handed just because he stammers. Some of the other causes may be active.

One Summer's Romance

—BY RITA HANSEN—

CHAPTER XVIII

Lisa moved them, holding her breath for fear they would discover her. Her anger and humiliation were like a blindness. She stumbled into people, seeing nothing. Someone called her and she didn't look to see who it was. She got into the elevator without explaining to her hostess or anyone that she was leaving. Down in the street, there was no cab and she started walking swiftly. It was quite late but there were several people who passed her and stared at her in idle speculation. Wouldn't they envy her if they knew she had just opened in a new successful play. Yes, wouldn't they envy her! A dumb hill-billy who made a fool of herself in the big city. Oh, boy!

After two blocks she found a cab. She lay back on the seat, hearing over and over again the words that had knocked her glamorous little world to pieces. Julie saying, "Poor Johnny—it was such a lovely play!" and Symie, "An amateur is always an amateur!" But the most terrible was Johnny; "We can't throw the poor kid out—I'll think of some way of letting her down easy!"

Grimly she stared out at the dark streets. "You won't have to worry about letting me down easy, Johnny. I'm all the way down—and out!"

In her apartment she fell on her bed, face down. It was good not to move, not to even think for a while. But then she began to feel weak. She wanted to cry, and she had determined not to cry—not to let them make her cry. She sat up and looked down at her hands in her lap. She had been clutching Johnny's ring in her hand ever since the moment on the roof when she had torn it off. She turned it over and over, rubbing it against her palm and looking at it. It stood for all the glamour and romance of the world she thought she had had. She'd only worn it a few brief hours; it would go back to Johnny with all the other dreams he had given her.

She got up heavily, put it in a box and telephoned for a messenger. Before he came she sat at the desk and tried to think of something to say to Johnny. There didn't seem to be any words. The boy rang her bell, she called out, "Just a minute!" and then wrote: "Thanks so much for a lovely summer romance. It was nice while it lasted—but it's October now."

She gave the note and the box to the boy with Johnny's address, and coming back into the room, she moved with new sureness and decision. She knew what she would do.

It didn't take long to pack. She checked most of the things and took only a small bag. She was glad now, that she had rented a car. It would have been unbearable to sit in a railroad station and wait for a train.

She surprised the manager of the apartment by cutting off his congratulations on her opening night, with a request for her bill. "Miss Alden," he pleaded, "is there anything we have not done—any reason why you are going somewhere else——?"

"I'm going out of town," she said curtly. "And I won't be back. Please call for my car." She almost added, "There's a juicy item for the columns in the morning. Go ahead, phone it in, don't mind me!"

The first newsstand she drove past held the early morning editions. There would be reviews of the play She went past, ignoring the newsboys. It didn't matter what they said now. That part of her life was all finished. She drove by all the newsstands and out to New York, breathing deeply of the dark country air. The words still sang in her head. Every time they went through her mind it was a fresh wound, a quick stab of pain. It was like when somebody dies and your mind keeps going over one thing; their last words, or the way somebody told you they were dead. A kind of involuntary self-torture. It was the worst part of any grief.

Her mind became clearer, however, the longer she drove. She was going home where she belonged. It was true she'd sold the house, but Mark would sell it back. Poor Mark! Had he felt like this when she jilted him? Maybe Mark had been right. Maybe she would find that she loved him after all. But she didn't want to think of that now. All she wanted to think about was getting home—back to the valley.

Care for Washing Machine

With professional laundries curtailing their services, you are more than careful with your electric washing machine. You view the rubber wringer rolls with affection and wipe them with a damp cloth, dry them carefully and always release them between washings (pressure kills the bouncy life of rubber). You use vinegar water to remove those pesky stains made by "hard" water.

Put Blankets Away for Summer

By Martha Ellyn

There's little doubt that we will need any longer to tuck ourselves under blankets to stay comfortable at night. At least the heavy woolen blankets which keep us warm through the winter will not be necessary.

Martha Ellyn

Instead of being folded and put away in any fashion we should give them the best of summer storage. The wise home-maker will put moths and carpet beetles on starvation rations. This can be done by making certain that blankets are completely clean before storing.

When it is certain that the blankets are scrupulously clean they should then be sealed in heavy paper, in chests or trunks with tight lids. For further protection naphthalene flakes or crystals of paradichlorobenzene may be used. The gas from these substances discourage the larvae from feeding and if concentrated enough, will kill the insects. Because this gas is heavier than air the flakes or crystals should be placed near the top of any closet or cupboard where they are used.

PRESSING—After a blanket has been washed the binding should be pressed to neatness. Press with a warm iron with a double thickness of dry cheesecloth between the binding and the iron

Home Washing

If equipment for washing is available in the home then the blankets can be washed to retain their original size, fluffiness and rich color. But it must be remembered that wool fiber is sensitive when wet and so the washing must be done quickly and gently.

Warm, dry spring days are hand-picked for washing blankets. Never, never wash them on a hot, sticky day or when there is a high wind. Only one blanket should be washed at a time. First shake thoroughly to remove all loose dust. Then examine the binding. If the binding is soiled, lay the blanket on a smooth, clean working surface and scrub the binding gently with a soft brush dipped in thick lather made with mild soap. This same treatment may be used also for any particularly soiled spots.

The water must be lukewarm (95 to 100 degrees) and softened if necessary. Always make certain that soap flakes are completely dissolved. Whether the blanket is all wool, part wool, cotton or rayon and wool, the same procedure is followed.

It is hard work to wash blankets by hand, but it can be done. Wash but one blanket at a time and dip up and down in the suds and avoid all rubbing. If the blanket is quite soiled wash in two or three fresh suds baths. If suds dies, add more soap. Be sure to extract the water after each bath by squeezing gently. NEVER twist or wring.

Rinsing Important

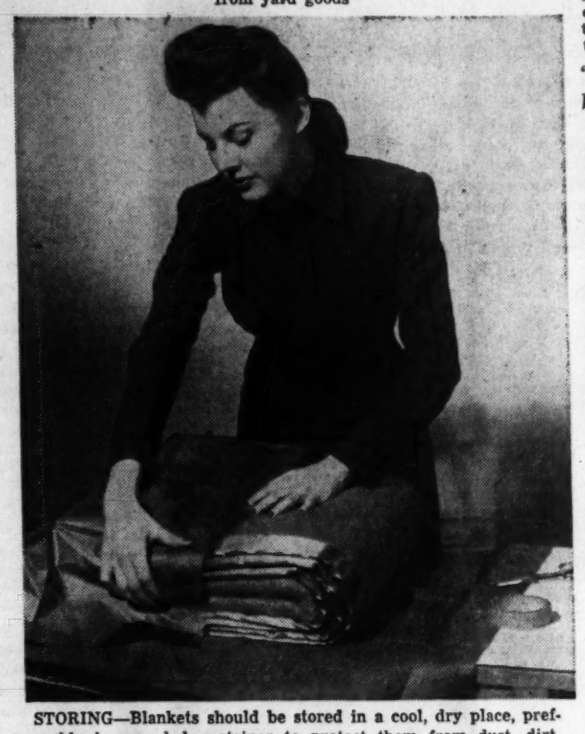
Rinsing is also important. Rinse two or three times in lukewarm water, extracting the water after each rinse. Moth-proofing compounds are available for putting in the last rinse water. Follow directions on the package.

When blankets are washed in washing machine, it should be filled with lukewarm soft water. Use a three-inch suds made of mild soap. Run the washer two to four minutes. If the blanket does not appear clean in that time, extract the water and wash again for two minutes in fresh suds. Rinse two or three times, running the washer two minutes each time, and extracting the water after each rinse. If a wringer is used to extract the water be sure to loosen the tension on the rolls as much as possible. If a spinner is used, run it only long enough to extract the water, because when run too long it will wrinkle the blanket.

Drying is also very important. Cover the clothesline with an old sheet, even though you are certain the line is clean. Hang the blanket lengthwise over the line with the weight evenly distributed on each side and with any stripes hanging vertically. Two lines, spaced one or two feet apart, will hasten the drying. Do not hang in direct sunlight. Never use clothespins. Shake the blanket and gently press out water that has drained to the bottom. Straighten the borders and keep the edges straight. When the blanket has partially dried, shake it gently and reverse it on the line.

If dried indoors keep it away from any source of artificial heat. When the blanket is thoroughly dry, use a soft brush to fluff up the nap, brushing against the up and down of the nap. Press the binding with a warm iron, with a double thickness of dry cheesecloth between the binding and the iron.

BINDING—Worn and frayed bindings on blankets can be replaced easily. Ready-made blanket bindings are available at the notion counters or you can cut your own satin or sateen bindings from yard goods



STORING—Blankets should be stored in a cool, dry place, preferably in a sealed container to protect them from dust, dirt, mildew and moths. Avoid piling other articles on top of them—give them top position

John's 'Blitz' Coat

By Margaret Sheppard Fidler

London, England.

JOHN has outgrown his "blitz" coat. I made it in London during the Battle of Britain and now I hate to part with it. In a world of sudden alarm and hurtling death it meant something sane and normal; a peg on which to hang tomorrow, a faith that tomorrow would come and John would wear it.

On the night of a concentrated attack on our district I sewed in the lining and worked the buttonholes. Two-year-old John, in his cot in a strutted basement scullery, slept serenely as all the fury of gun and bomb shook the house, hour after hour. One buttonhole has a fault where my thread broke when a bomb fell 100 yards away. A nearby house was destroyed and the appalling crash and blast seemed near enough to be our own house collapsing above us. Perhaps it was—but John was still asleep and day would dawn and he would soon need his warm coat. It was September and the days were growing cool.

The thread does not tone well in another place. I had taken the wrong thread down with me into the basement when the alert sounded at 7 p. m. and it would be madness to go upstairs to get it with all hell let loose around the house. I did go up later that evening because out of the horror of fiendish sounds there suddenly came the calm familiar ring of my front door bell. Perhaps it was someone seeking shelter with us. I rushed upstairs to find a youth from the local drug store delivering a bottle of cough mixture for John. "You rang for this earlier today," he explained, half apologetically, "and I thought perhaps the cough might be keeping John awake." I shall never forget that moment the smiling, hatless youth on his errand of mercy, whistling through the dark on his way home, all unconscious of heroism; not far away the red glow of London burning and falling and around and above the shriek and whistle of bombs, the pounding of guns and sharp rattle of shrapnel. The knight errant went on his perilous way; I returned to my sewing and waited for the "All Clear" of dawn.

Those dawns were glorious. The sky was rosy over the russet tree tops. I used to go to an upper window and look out in wonder over the serenity of the sky, the trees, the gardens and the storied river. They were unchanged since yesterday. It seemed incredible. I was like a man cautiously feeling his bones after a fall, to see if he is still all there, and miraculously I was all there, but I could never get used to this. Each new day was an unexpected, undeserved and beautiful gift. Every morning I held my breath as I went up out of my basement—would my home be there above me and how would it look out of my window? No sign of last night's chaos; only some broken windows, a shell cap in the garden and a few pieces of shrapnel, jagged and lethal, in John's sand pit.

THE constant day raids were more irritating than terrifying. Jerry always seemed to know just when I had put John to sleep in the garden and was settling down to my sewing machine with his coat. I used to hear a squadron of fighter planes going out to meet the intruders and my mind would register, Oh, the reception committee are going out again! I can smile now at Lottie, my calm and efficient maid (now making planes). "The sirens have gone, madame, shall I put in the shutters?" This meant disturbing John to take him downstairs and I had to abandon my sewing machine, too.

Tradesmen always called on their regular rounds regardless of these raids and never could be persuaded to take shelter with us. I urged one rather dull-witted lad to come in, as a dog-fight was in progress in the azure sky directly above us. He shrugged his shoulders. "Blimey! Jerry won't 'alf cop it. I'm all right—if your number's up——!" and he shrugged expressively as he stuck up his thumb and whistled away with his basket.

Lottie slept with friends in a cellar a short distance away, as we had no sleeping room in a really safe place for her. The route between her "hideout" and my house seemed to be peppered with unexploded bombs (U. X. B.'s) and almost every morning she had to make some new and complicated detour to reach us, but she always arrived at 8 a. m. as bright and shining and neat as if she had dressed at the Ritz. I smile now when I recall the pleasantries of my morning greeting. "Good morning, Lottie, how are your U. X. B.'s today? Have any of them gone up yet?" Those U. X. B.'s were the most tantalizing things. In case one should land in our garden we always kept a small case packed with essentials for a quick get-away. It might be necessary to leave at a moment's notice at the height of the bombardment and remain away for a few days—or forever, as the bomb might explode before it could be removed.

I LOVE my home, which contains many treasures most dearly dear to me in time of peace, but when I packed this emergency bag and wondered which treasure of treasures I could save, I packed only John's clothes, some food for him, and his baby book. I knew with absolute certainty that none of my possessions, none of my heirlooms mattered one whit. Only to be alive with my dear ones was everything. Friends who have lost everything but life in the blitz have sometimes visited me soon after their disaster and I noticed that they never sighed for their possessions, or mourned their loss—they rejoiced in their own escape and went quietly on their way. One of them was rescued from her bombed home by a fireman who had lost his wife and three children in a raid two nights before. "My family are safe," she said, "we made a home from nothing once, we can do it again." And now I am sad at parting with a tiny coat!

The Sheltered Woman

The sheltered woman, who has been on her way out in this country since the Civil War, is now getting the final shove into oblivion. Social prophets see her as virtually a museum piece in the postwar world.

That of course does not mean that every homemaker will rush out of her kitchen to become a welder or a longshoreman. It rather means that the "helpless female" tradition will be less effective in cluttering up the lives of women—and of men. It means that the time is approaching when every human being will seek to become equipped to stand on his or her own feet economically, and let us hope, mentally and emotionally.

As a matter of fact, the sheltered woman has always been more of a tradition than an actuality. She was sheltered largely in oratory, poetry and in petty prohibitions. She was "protected" from the crudities of the outside world, but not from those of her own kitchen. But, regardless of to what extent she has ever existed, the sheltered tradition has written some tragic chapter in feminine social history.

'Helpless Females Were Tragic

It was responsible for the miserable fifth wheel existences that most unmarried women of the last century knew as dependents in the homes of their relatives. It was responsible for the helpless untutored widows who were swindled by sharpsters and who often experienced poverty and dependence to the end of their days. It was responsible for the countless number of wives who found themselves little more than charwomen without wages or playthings living on the uncertain doles of whimsical Santa Clauses. It was responsible for the growth of a highly romanticized notion of marriage on the part of young women—namely that a knight who was Apollo, Sir Galahad, Papa and Jove all rolled into one came along on a charger to offer marriage and a life of unruffled bliss ever afterward. In short, the tradition of the sheltered woman was that of feminine immaturity.

This tradition has long managed to survive in one form or another, and according to sociologists, to lead many disillusioned wives to the divorce court. However, the general trend in the relations between men and women has been markedly toward comradeship and partnership. This trend, it is believed, will receive much impetus from the change in women's activities that the war has necessitated. Women will gain new faith in themselves through the tasks they have found themselves able to perform. They will naturally be able to face men more as economic and mental equals, to drop much of their indirection, pretense and dishonesty in their dealings with them. Above all, they will have gained a new respect for the mature viewpoint, which is the basis of a successful life and an orderly world.

For women to complete their shedding of the 'helpless female' role should not be a difficult task, according to Lawrence Gould psychologist. Writing in the summer issue of the magazine Predictions of Things to Come, he says: "For a good many years it has been part of my business to listen to women's grievances and heartaches, and I know that the 'helpless' female of tradition has no fundamental basis in feminine nature. She's an artificial product like the oldtime Chinese girl with bound feet. The womanly girl of romance and tradition isn't really feminine at all. She's merely childish. But with girls receiving much the same education, reading the same books and listening to the same broadcasts as their brothers, enforced immaturity is harder to impose on each new generation."

So . . . perhaps the day is approaching when the traditional helpless females of the past, the great lady of the Southern slave-manned plantations, the little brown wren of the ivy-covered cottage who never learned even how to write a check, the clinging wife with her smug boast of economic helplessness, the butterfly bridge fiend and party goer, will be joined by another traditional figure—blow though it may be to radio and the movies—namely the nitwit little girl wife.

The Old Red Barn Tunes Up for Summer Season

Cross Roads Theater Announces Tryouts; Jean Hersholt to Talk Here on Monday; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

OF PRIME IMPORTANCE to the local Mansfields and Bernhardts—judging from the persistence with which the phone has kept up its jingling since the first announcement that the theater was to operate again this year—is the announcement that open tryouts for the entire schedule of plays to be presented this summer in the "old red barn," over at Bailey's Cross Roads, in Virginia, will be held at 8 p. m., in the Statler Hotel on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 1 and 2.

JEAN HERSHOLT

Producer Neil Linger makes known that Howard F. Wentworth, veteran Cross Roads Theater director, again will be in the driver's seat after a season's absence. And Director Wentworth, in turn, urges that those planning to attend the tryouts come prepared with their own material for reading. This, Mr. Wentworth observes, is suggested merely as a time-saving device and is not mandatory. The Cross Roads management will have scripts on hand for reading by those who have no material of their own.

It is comforting to note in this connection that the Cross Roads this season will not be starting from scratch. A number of old favorite players will be on hand to form the nucleus of the new acting group. Among these, Cross Roads fans will be happy to learn, are included Catherine Ryan, Izetta Jewell, jr., Forney Reese, Ruth May and Zack Waters.

On next Monday evening, May 24, at the Coolidge Auditorium in the Library of Congress, at 8:15 by the clock, Jean Hersholt, bibliophile and distinguished star of screen and radio, will give a talk on the life and works of Hans Christian Andersen. His lecture will be one of the current series being sponsored by the Writers Club at the library. To Mr. Hersholt, a native of Denmark, Andersen personifies his native land. He has been a diligent collector of the Danish author for many years and today his collection of books and scripts by Hans Christian Andersen is reputed to be the finest outside of Copenhagen and the most complete privately owned collection anywhere. In his appearance in Coolidge Auditorium, Mr. Hersholt will supplement his prepared talk with reminiscences of his life in Hollywood and will show a film of the new Motion Picture Country House, in the founding of which he played an active part. Mr. Hersholt's last public appearance in Washington, if memory serves, was on the occasion of his participation in the President's birthday celebrations in 1939.

"Flare Path" Recruits a Star

Doris Patston, of the Broadway cast of "Flare Path," is making a special trip to Washington to appear in her original role in the United Nations Club production of Flight Lieut. Terence Rattigan's play about the R. A. F., to be staged in Wardman Park Theater on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of next week.

Miss Patston, British by birth, but for some years prominent in the New York Theater, takes the part of an English barmaid married to a Polish count, serving in the Royal Air Force.

"Flare Path," it should be known, already has been purchased for filming by Twentieth Century-Fox and is based on the worries of the wives whose husbands are away on bombing missions with the most famous of flying forces. Flight Lieutenant Rattigan, a successful author in private life, contrived the drama while on duty with the British Coastal Command. He is now on foreign duty. The United Nations Club production will be directed by John Bown, with a strong likelihood of Margaret Webster's coming down to put on the finishing touches. Miss Webster, of course, is the distinguished director of the Maurice Evans Shakespearean productions and the daughter of Ben Webster and Dame May Whitty, celebrated star of stage and screen.

As has already been noted for Sabbath's paper, but not yet printed—along with a reasonably complete compendium of the continuing attractions not re-reviewed in recent issues—Producer Max Gordon is winging east from the Pacific Coast to be present at the National Theater on Monday night, May 31, to have himself a gander at the newly assembled cast to be seen here for the first time on the second visit of Joseph Fields' "The Doughgirls," the amiable charade that has been a box-office panic ever since its premiere here on the same stage. He will be accompanied by Author Fields and George S. Kaufman, who staged the play.

"Merchant Seamen," latest release in RKO-Radio's "This Is America" series, coming along soon to the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater, will convey to many a more concrete notion than they have had heretofore of the spirit that makes an overseas convoy one of the most thrilling of wartime adventures. I was convinced of this when a one-man preview in the OWI projection room Tuesday afternoon demonstrated how interestingly a long story has been telescoped into 18 minutes of running time.

Everything-but-Salt-in-the-Water Note

The summer season of body-dunking in the Crystal Pool, out at Glen Echo Park, begins today, so I see by the streetcar signs.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

New Turn in Road

Hollywood, May 21 (INS).—Bonita Granville, the child actress who almost overnight blossomed into a full-fledged star and glamour girl, has come to a new turn in her career. She is going on a ten-weeks' tour with Abe Lyman's band as vocalist.

BONITA GRANVILLE

Don't think for a moment that Charlie Koerner is dismissing her that easily from R.-K.-O. after her sensational hit in "Hitler's Children." No indeed! She comes back to the studio in August.

After giving her his blessing, Koerner told Bonita that when she finishes warbling with the Lyman band she is to report to R.-K.-O. for the lead in "We, the People," a special now being prepared.

The fans who haven't for a minute let Frances Farmer down, and those who have written me letter after letter asking how she is getting along, will be delighted to know she is almost well enough to be dismissed from the La Crescenta Sanitarium. Her agent, Tommy Samylo, has been making frequent trips to see her and he says she looks wonderful. "She is completely herself again," says Samylo. The nice part is that Hollywood, as well as the fans, have been waiting for good news about Frances. Several movie jobs await her—particularly Paramount's "Four Angels." If she is well enough, a role in this picture is hers immediately.

Sigrid Gurie, who startled the world—well, Hollywood, anyway—when she admitted that instead of being born in Norway she first saw the light of day in Brooklyn, is returning to the screen. Sigrid retired four years ago to be the "Little Woman" in her husband's (Dr. Spangler) life. Maybe "Rio," which wasn't so hot at Universal, also had something to do with it, although she was lovely in "The Adventures of Marco Polo," opposite Gary Cooper. Anyway, she is to have the femme lead opposite Francis Lederer in "Strange Music."

Now that Martha Scott has had her first fling as a glamour girl in "Hi Diddle Diddle" she should be a smart girl about what she does next. Personally, I hope she stays in Hollywood and does not heed the Broadway offer to start her in a stage dramatization of "Rebecca." Martha's too young to go in for so many character type roles and, while "Rebecca" eventually becomes glamorous, she's a drab little soul for a good half of the story. Movie producers are impressionable, and if an actress plays too many character roles she is typed as a matron forever.

Great Day in the Morning!

blue-eyed and beautiful and owner of the unique distinction of having been the only actress in Hollywood history who had to "die" to live in pictures. Had she not been "killed" out of the "Dr. Kildare" series, she might never have had the opportunity to appear opposite Cary Grant in so engaging a subject as "Mr. Lucky." Due to the fine judgment that released her from the role of the nurse, however, she will be coming along in the more worthy assignment in due course, thanks be

They Have a Technique

Hollywood, Calif., May 21.—Warner Brothers always tries to fool you. In a fight with a star, that star is suspended publicly. Then half a dozen names are mentioned as going into his or her part. That does the trick and brings the original one back to the fold. If Jean Gabin gets his nose into "Passage to Marseilles" he'll play second fiddle to Humphrey Bogart, which was the original intention. . . . For the real meaty part in "Since You Went Away" with Shirley Temple, David Selznick is hoping he'll get one of the following lovelies to play her mother: Claudette Colbert, Rosalind Russell, or Myrna Loy. They'd all be good, and I'm not sticking, my neck out picking the best. . . . Vincent Price is finally set for the lead in "Blindman's House." R. C. Sheriff is whittling it into screen form. . . . Now that Ann Sothern's divorce is final, rumors are current that she'll up and marry Bob Sterling at once. And she probably will.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE

Busy Little Bee

Ran into Victor Moore in the parking lot where he comes twice a week to fill up his rented jallopy. Owns three back East, never bothered to bring one West. Victor won't go East to do Mike Todd's new show until he finishes picture with Mae West. In the new Broadway show, Zorina will play a Spanish bull-fighter . . . We got onto sports. Victor said, "I sunk enough money in racing to have bought four tracks, was cured five years ago. Made a killing at Santa Anita, brought home $49,000, parcelled it out in envelopes, two and three thousand in each. I'd take one of 'em each day to the track. Finally, got reckless, took a whole bunch and lost the wad. That cured me forever.

"I'll never forget when I was playing in "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," with George M. Cohan. I borrowed $1000. He liked the ponies, too, and said, 'Victor, if you make a million, pay me. If you don't forget it—I owe you a million.'"

His Old Trade

Monty Woolley complains of too much work, then says he'll do lectures in colleges throughout the country this coming year . . . in a scene with Gracie Fields in "Holy Matrimony," Director John Stahl was riding that swell actress, Una O'Connor, when Gracie was overheard to say, "Nobody gets nowhere by being shirty." After that Una was left alone . . . Wonder why somebody doesn't sign Frank McHugh. He's ben devoting most of his time to camp shows, so Hollywood, as usual, forgets him . . . Gabriel Pascal threatened to make his pictures in America, but has set a deal to do George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" in London, as we all knew he would . . . Charlie Brackett will be a grandpappy come July, when Corpl. James Larrimore's baby is born.

'Round the Town

Rita Hayworth and Orson Welles scrapped. So for two nights Rita did the town with Bruce Cabot. She returned to Orson, and Bruce went over to Ann Sheridan's side. They were at the Mocambo Saturday night, and it was mighty interesting when Errol Flynn stuck his good-looking face over the other shoulder—Ann's, not Bruce's . . . There, too, were Anita Colby and Jinx Falkenberg. . . . Felt sorry for camera boys trying to get a shot of jitterbugs Betty Hutton and Don Loper. . . . Adrian's and Janet's cocktail party for the Jimmy Pendletons brought out gay prints. Gave us another look at Adrian's patio and mammoth pepper tree, which acted as parasol for many guests. Janet, the perfect wartime hostess, was done up in pink and blue checked gingham.

Social Notes

Barbara Hutton Grant's house guest, Chesky Pascha, head man at Turkish Embassy in Washington, is having quite a time here with our beauties. He's plenty intrigued with bombshell Betty Hutton . . . A funny romance, that one between Bunny Waters and Leo Morrison, who's half her size. And Al Jolson is sizzling. Bunny plays Cupid next Sunday in Santa Barbara to Frankie Albertson and Grace Gillern, the dancer, when they marry at the Old Mission up there . . . Woody Herman's opening at the Palladium will have Sonja Henie, Jack Oakie and stars of "Wintertime" screaming their heads off for their favorite leader . . . Eddie Buzzell went to New York to find himself a new cook. He signed one, a Viennese refugee, also her 5-year-old son. And he's sending them to night school to learn English . . . R.-K.-O. is negotiating with Ralph Edwards and his Truth or Consequences radio show. His show arrives here June 5.

Knows Eddie

When Eddie Bracken told his wife he plays a small-town jerk in "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek," she beamed: "Oh, you can wear your own clothes."

Broadway Glossary

New York, May 21.

CHOICE: The current discussion over the selection of a supreme commander for the Allied forces makes this story relevant: When Wendell Willkie was in Moscow, he talked with Stalin about the method used in selecting Russia's able generals. "How can you tell whether a general is going to be capable?" Willkie asked . . . "You can't decide that from answers on an examination paper," said Stalin. "Only from his experience in battle can you tell whether a general is going to be good. For instance," Stalin cited, "take your own Joe Louis. If you were to pick a good opponent for him, you wouldn't select the man whose biceps, chest, height, weight, reach, etc., were the same as the champion's. You'd pick a man who has shown his talents inside a prize-ring."

MME. CHIANG KAI-SHEK

REPLY: After Henry Luce published his Open Letter to Britain, in Life magazine, the undersecretary for colonies, Harold MacMillan, was asked by a member of Parliament what the official attitude was toward Luce's letter . . . "His Majesty's government," said MacMillan, "is more interested in the principles of lend-lease than in those of Luce-Life."

OFFER: Shortly after Leon Henderson resigned as Price Administrator, the representative of a large corporation approached him and offered him a job at a fabulous salary. "No, thank you. I once said I wouldn't work for the Administration," said Leon, calculating what the income taxes would be, "and if I took this job, I'd be working for Henry Morgenthau."

RATION: The secretary of the Mme. Chiang Kai-shek entourage applied for ration coupons to obtain 25 pairs of shoes for the entire group. This included a request for two pairs of shoes for Madame Chiang. The OPA issued 16 coupons. Another member of the entourage then offered her coupons to Madame Chiang . . . . . The Duchess of Windsor sent her secretary to the OPA office, and was given two coupons—one for herself and the other for the duke. The duke surrendered his coupon to the duchess, who bought two pairs of shoes for herself.

SCHOOL: Margaret Fishback met a 7-year-old girl who had attended an ultra-progressive school and then was transferred to a public school. "Which do you like better?" Miss Fishback asked . . . "The public school," the youngster replied, "because there they don't make you do what you want to do."

CHATTER: Pare Lorentz, the movie producer, now is in China for the United States Army . . . Lyle Saxon, the noted Louisiana historian, is in Washington writing the history of the WPA for the Federal Government . . . When the Windsors visited the Stage Door Canteen this week, the duchess signed the register "Wallis Windsor." Her husband signed it "Edward" . . . The boom will start for Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, to run for the Senate in the State of Washington . . . In the Netherlands now, all foodstuffs purchased by the Dutch in the Nazi black markets are referred to as "Vitamin B"—B for bribery.

FASHION: These nights at the White House dinners, Winston Churchill wears blue-black velvet pumps with gold embroidery. Initials are embroidered on each pump—not his own initials, "W. S. C.," but the initials of the office he holds, "P. M."

MISTAKE: A newspaperwoman in Cheyenne was told to go to the airport and interview "an important lady" who was a passenger on the East-bound plane. When the plane made its stop-off, and the passengers emerged for a short rest, the newspaperwoman learned that one of the passengers was a Miss Thompson. She therefore interviewed Miss Thompson, asking a long series of detailed and penetrating questions about the progress of the war and international affairs . . . The reporter then asked Miss Thompson whether she cared to say anything about her recently announced engagement. "Oh, I'm not Dorothy Thompson," said Malvina Thompson, as she reentered the plane, and there joined her employer, Eleanor Roosevelt, who had been napping.

YOUTH: Jono Fadiman and Dick Bradford, both 11, are pupils at the Friends Seminary. They met at the opening of the new term, and this was their conversation. "Are you Roark Bradford's son?" asked Fadiman . . . "Yes," replied the son of the author of "John Henry" and "Green Pastures." "Are you Clifton Fadiman's son?" . . . "Yes," replied the son of the Information Please quizmaster. They stared at each other, then said "S'long," and left.

'Mary Ann' Model

John Ridgely's birthday gift to his 2-year-old son will be a scale model duplicate of the "Mary Ann," the Boeing B-17E Flying Fortress which he piloted in "Air Force."

New 'Nostradamus'

Carey Wilson's fourth "Nostradamus" subject goes before the cameras with Cyril Endfield directing.

Baby Talk Lines Read by Producer

Hollywood producer William Pine let the "ham" in him come out for awhile in his current film.

In a scene, Richard Arlen and Wendy Barrie were leaving a hospital room for Paramount's "Submarine Alert." Before exiting, Dink and Wendy were to look at the patient in bed to say "Goodby."

However, the patient was not on the set and Producer Pine quickly offered to read the absent player's off-stage dialogue, which he did. The first take was perfect, but the entire crew howled with laughter when the cameras stopped turning.

The player Pine substituted for until her own voice could be recorded was 3-year-old Patsy Nash and the producer played the scene to character, using baby talk.

Humphrey Bogart, who could, has never raised his own beard.

Senator George FetesBeveridge At Luncheon

Sir William Beveridge, British author of the famous "cradle to the grave" plan for British social security, was honored at luncheon given yesterday by Senator Walter George of Georgia in the Senate dining room.

The guests, including members of the postwar planning committee, were Senator Scott W. Lucas, Senator Carl Hayden, Senator Joseph O'Mahoney, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senator Warren R. Austin, Senator Robert A. Taft, Senator Albert B. Chandler, Senator Guy M. Gillette, Senator Tom Connally, Senator Charles L. McNary, Arthur J. Altmeyer of the Social Security Board, and Ralph McGill of the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

Sir William, who is here at the invitation of the Rockefeller Foundation, will be in Washington a short time before starting a tour of the United States and Canada to study American and Canadian attitudes toward postwar economic problems.

He and Lady Beveridge were entertained at dinner last evening by the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins. Guests for the affair, which took place at the Sulgrave Club, included Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace and the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Claude Wickard.

Declares Husband 'Real Writer In Family' but Wife Tries, Too

By Peggy Preston

The Bernard Brodies—Lieut. and Mrs.—are now a pair of book-writing authors.

Although the lieutenant has long been well established as a writer on naval affairs, his tall, darkly attractive wife only recently gained recognition. It came quite suddenly a few weeks ago when she received notification that she was a winner of the fourth annual Alfred A. Knopf literary fellowship.

At her apartment yesterday in the Alban Towers, where she has been living since coming to Washington two months ago, Fawn Brodie was still a little surprised at her lot. "My husband is the real writer in the family," she explained. "My book has yet to prove itself with the public, and it won't even be finished for a year yet."

Despite her modesty, Mrs. Brodie is apparently well on her way toward becoming an author. Her book, when completed, will tell the story of Joseph Smith, prophet and founder of the Mormon Church. The first few chapters were sufficiently good to catch the attention of the Knopf publishers who annually issue fellowships to promising young authors. Winners are given a total award of $2500, one-half of which is an outright grant and one-half an advance against royalties and publication of the book when completed.

Grew Up in Mormon Section

A native of Ogden, Utah, Fawn Brodie was brought up in the heart of the Mormon country. She received her musical name from a grandfather, who, she explains, had a poetic streak. Her interest in Joseph Smith dates from her childhood, and her enthusiasm for him as a forceful personality eventually led her into a long period of research that culminated in the decision to do his biography.

"To most people, Mormonism means simply polygamy and Brigham Young," she said in explaining the purpose of her book. "Joseph Smith never reached Utah and his influence has been largely overlooked."

Like most biographers, Mrs. Brodie finds herself completely absorbed in her subject matter. A research-perfectionist, she has followed the life of the prophet by visiting all the scenes of his varied and colorful exploits. The trail has led her from Vermont, to Ohio, to Missouri, to Illinois, where he met his death at the hands of an enraged mob.

Even here in Washington, where she came to join her husband, now on duty in the Bureau of Naval Ordnance, Mrs. Brodie has picked up the threads of the Smith career again. The lonely prophet was in the city to plead the cause of his people before President Van Buren, but left, she reports, without a hearing.

Follows Strict Work Routine

The Brodie family, they are three now, with the recent addition of a young son, lived in Hanover, N. H., before coming to the Capital. Lieutenant Brodie, author of several Naval technical books, including the renowned "A Layman's Guide to Naval Strategy," was formerly a professor of political science at Dartmouth College.

Prior to her marriage the young Mrs. Brodie studied journalism at the University of Chicago and did graduate work there in political science. In 1941 she worked with the American Committee for International Studies at Princeton University and still contributes articles to the committee's publications.

She is pretty excited about her current writing project. "I have a routine," she pointed out. "Four hours a day for the book, and the rest of the time for my 6-month-old son."

Noted Jurist Visits Here From Santo Domingo

Jose Bonilla Atiles, Dean of the Law School of the University of Santo Domingo, who arrived in this country as guest of the Department of State, was in Washington for a brief stay before setting out for a tour of the country. He will return for another visit before leaving for the Dominican Republic.

Dr. Bonilla Atiles is well acquainted with the legal systems of almost every country in the world and has made a special study of the law of real property. At the present time he is preparing a book on this subject which will deal specifically with the laws of the Dominican Republic. With this in mind he will be particularly interested to visit not only Massachusetts but Illinois and Missouri and several other States, so that the results of his observations may find a place in his book. He will also visit colleges of law at the leading universities.

United Nations Club To Show Film

Members of the British and Canadian Military and Naval Missions will be honor guests at the United Nations film presentation of Noel Coward's "Cavalcade" to be held tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock at Hotel 2400. The film will be followed by a supper.

"Cavalcade," produced some years ago, is the story of two wars fought by the British—the Boer War and the First World War, during the lifetime of two generations. A preview of "Action Stations" through the courtesy of the National Film Board of Canada, which shows the famous little Canadian corvette, Port Arthur, with its new type crew of extreme youth, will also be presented.

Here From Ohio

Mrs. Frank Merrill has come from Cincinnati, Ohio, to join her husband, Col. Merrill, at the Statler. Col. Merrill came here from the Far East with Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell.

Mrs. Vandegrift 'At Home' To 'Coming and Going' Marines

Gathers in Newly Arrived Officers and Wives For Relaxation From Washington Whirligig

Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift, wife of General Vandegrift of the Marine Corps, will be "at home" informally this afternoon to a number of her friends in Washington.

General Vandegrift, who was in command of the first Marine contingent in Guadalcanal, has been back on duty in the Pacific area for the past two months.

Their son, Maj. Alexander A. Vandegrift, jr., expects to be off for combat duty shortly also. For some time he has been in Quantico on the staff of the R. O. C. School, training officers.

In the meantime Mrs. Vandegrift maintains the Washington home to welcome the wandering warriors of her family whenever their duties permit them to be in Washington for a brief moment or two. During the interim she is occupying herself in several contributions to the war effort. She is for instance on the executive committee of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club and has just completed a Red Cross informative course.

Entertains Marine Officers' Families

But perhaps the job she does that is of more importance to the Marines than any other, particularly for morale, is her informal, cheerful way of keeping track of the "coming and going" Marine officers and families; and her way of gathering them together at her home for a few moments of relaxation and cheer from the war-weary whirligig that is Washington.

This afternoon among those "special guests" (her gatherings are too informal to have "honor guests") are several Marine officers and their wives who have just arrived here for station, and at least one Marine "waiting wife" who has come to make her home here for the duration.

The latter is Mrs. Julian Smith, wife of Major General Smith of the Marine Corps, who "is somewhere on duty." Mrs. Smith, who expects to be here "until victory," will move very shortly into their home at Belle Haven, Alexandria. For the moment she is the house guest of Mrs. Blythe Jones at 3901 Connecticut Avenue.

Gen. and Mrs. Geiger Recent Arrivals

Among the recently arrived in Washington are Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Roy Geiger, who are at the Statler for a few days until they get settled into their home. Gen. Geiger, who was on duty with Gen. Vandegrift at Guadalcanal, has reported to duty here to relieve Gen. Ralph Mitchell in Marine Aviation.

Still others in the Marine contingent who have just come for station in Washington are Col. and Mrs. W. P. T. Hill, who have just arrived from the Marine Base at New River, N. C.; and Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Randolph Pate, who have just taken an apartment at 3901 Connecticut Avenue. Col. Pate has also recently been on duty at Guadalcanal.

Col., Mrs. Jadwin To Make Home Here

Col. C. C. Jadwin, former military attache to Italy, Bulgaria and Turkey, has returned to the United States after an absence of three years.

Colonel Jadwin is now on leave in New York and Lakeville, Conn., where he and Mrs. Jadwin are visiting their son, Edgar Jadwin, 2nd, at Hotchkiss school.

After a short tour, Col. and Mrs. Jadwin will reside at 3700 Massachusetts Avenue. Colonel Jadwin's mother, Mrs. Edgar Jadwin, widow of Lieutenant General Jadwin, former Chief of Engineers, now makes her home at 2540 Massachusetts Avenue in Washington.

Brazil Attache And Wife Give Party

Some of the guests at the 6-to-8 o'clock party given yesterday by the Brazilian Naval Attache and Mme. Amorim do Valle had a very special treat. They saw the newest addition to the family, the 2 months old son, Franklin, who is called by his mother and father, "the American boy."

Also putting in a brief appearance at the party was the other son, 5-year-old Armando, who seemed not to mind at all when his baby brother took over the spotlight.

The party was the first of two planned by Commander and Mme Amorim do Valle. They will entertain again on June 3.

Among those present yesterday were the Brazilian Ambassador, Carlos Martins; Rear Admiral and Mrs. William O. Spears, Rear Admiral H. C. Train, Rear Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Rear Admiral J. A. Furer, Rear Admiral A. P. Fairfield, Rear Admiral J. H. Newton, Vice Admiral A. R. Vasconcellos, member of the joint Brazil-American Defense Commision; Capt. E. E. Brady, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Kempter, staff members and delegates of the Inter-American Defense Board, and several members of the Brazilian Embassy staff.

Mildred Waldman, Sergt. H. A. Harris, Recently Wed

Sergt. Harold Arden Harris, U. S. Army Air Corps, and Mrs. Harris, the former Miss Mildred Louise Waldman, who were married Saturday evening, May 15, are spending their honeymoon in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Phoebe Blanche Waldman of Washington. The ceremony was held at Foundry Methodist Church at 8 o'clock with the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the Senate, officiating. Mrs. Charles Haupt was the organist, and vocal selections were given by Justin Lawrie.

The bride wore a white lace and net gown and carried a bouquet of white orchids. She was given in marriage by Thomas Frederick Appell, a family friend. Her attendants were three former schoolmates—Mrs. Walter Thiele, Mrs. Robert Piere and Miss Doris Thompson—who wore pastel blue and pink frocks and carried pink roses. Joseph M. Waldman, U. S. N., brother of the bride, served as best man.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Harris of Orlando, Fla.

NO—HE'D ONLY RESENT IT! HE NEVER LIKES TO BE TOLD ANYTHING!
THEN YOU BETTER FORGET ALL ABOUT IT—AND JUST HOPE SOMETHIN' BREAKS IT UP!
I GUESS YOU'RE RIGHT—BUT I HAVEN'T GOT MUCH HOPE!

THERE'S A SPOT HERE ON THE BRIM. LOOKS LIKE A THUMB MARK
IT WASN'T THERE A MINUTE AGO. LET ME LOOK AT YOUR FINGERS
I THOUGHT SO. YOU JUST MADE THAT MARK YOURSELF. WHAT IS THE USE?

Officer Almost Kicked Out, Saving Navy's Face

(The Brass Ring, good for a free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, is awarded today to Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, the man the Navy was about to kick out, but who is now saving the Navy's face.)

THIS column recently revealed how the Navy had publicly taken credit for using helicopters as a new weapon against submarines, when as a matter of actual fact the Navy did not have even one helicopter in its possession and had opposed the Maritime Commission and the Coast Guard in their campaign to use helicopters.

Last month, Secretary Knox issued another piece of Navy ballyhoo which made interesting reading, but which had absolutely nothing to do with the Navy. He announced the good news that a number of airplane carriers converted from merchant vessels were being launched, and that many more would be launched soon.

However, the amazing truth is that the Navy did not even know these particular airplane carriers were being constructed.

Shortly before the Knox ballyhoo, forthright Rear Admiral "Jerry" Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, together with far-sighted Rear Admiral Howard Vickery, his construction commissioner, were conferring with Vice Admiral Fred Horne, right hand man to Secretary Knox and in charge of Naval Operations. Vice Admiral Horne was asking the Maritime Commission to turn over some of its shipyards for the construction of escort vessels.

"We're already building (number censored) airplane carriers for you now," replied Chairman Land.

"What airplane carriers?" replied Horne, "I thought you were building some transports."

"No," replied Land, "we're building flat-tops. They carry planes."

"When will they be finished?" asked Vice Admiral Horne.

"This year," replied Land.

Secret Ships

HERE IS the inside story of how the thing happened.

The man who put across these converted airplane carriers is Howard Vickery, once virtually kicked out of the Navy. The President went over the Admirals' heads and put him on the Maritime Commission. Vickery is a Republican, son of an Ohio judge who has opposed Roosevelt. But the President recognized his ability, later made him an admiral, despite the Navy.

Back in 1939 Vickery saw war coming, saw the importance of airplane carriers, got a secret order in writing from the President to build passenger vessels for the Pacific which could be converted into airplane carriers. They were to have smokestacks which could be pushed to the side of the deck, plus high-ceilinged saloons which could become hangars.

Vickery even went before Congress secretly and got the money voted for these ships. After all this work, however, the Navy vetoed the plan. It wrote a letter saying it would not need these converted carriers. Japan, however, learned about the idea and built this identical type of ship herself.

NOTE: Two years later, a few days after Pearl Harbor, the Navy proposed that most of our big passenger vessels—the Manhattan, Washington, Mariposa, Monterey—be converted to carriers exactly as Vickery had proposed But this would have taken 70 per cent of our troop transports and the Maritime Commission said no.

Prophet 'Ostracized'

MEANWHILE another admiral, once spurned by the Navy, came into the picture. He was Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of Naval Operations under Hoover, who agreed at the 1930 London Naval Conference that smaller cruisers were valuable in addition to large cruisers. (Guadalcanal certainly proved he was right.) Because Pratt did not stand 100 per cent behind the 10,000-ton cruiser, other Navy men claimed he had "sold out" to the British. When Pratt retired as chief of Naval Operations, few came to say goodby. He was almost ostracized.

Since the war, however, Pratt has come back to Washington from his home at Bath, Me., and more than a year ago, he and Admiral Vickery went to work again on converting a small number of previously constructed merchant vessels into airplane carriers. This was done on a very limited scale. But it happened that the first one converted was commanded by Harry Hopkins' brother-in-law.

He was so pleased with the ship that Hopkins, in charge of Lend-Lease, told the British about it. The United States Navy was still working on grandiose plans for big airplane carriers requiring about two years to build. But the British were interested in the possibility of quick carriers converted from merchant ships. So Hopkins called in Maritime Commission's Vickery.

"How would you like to spare 100 of your cargo ships for airplane carriers?" Hopkins asked Vickery, having in mind lending them to the British.

"It would be just like taking away my children," replied Vickery.

However, he went ahead and turned several shipyards making fast merchant ships to the production of airplane carriers. This was done entirely on the responsibility of the Maritime Commission. The Navy had nothing to do with it.

Kaiser Takes a Hand

Later, Henry Kaiser wanted to put an airplane carrier deck on Liberty vessels, but Admiral Vickery told him it would make the vessels top-heavy and he should go to see William F. Gibbs, the naval designer, and get him to draw a design. Architect Gibbs fiddled around with the plans for some time, got nowhere.

So Kaiser came back to the Maritime Commission, which itself made the drawings for converting Liberty ships into airplane carriers. The drawings were sent over to the Navy Department, but the Navy would have none of it. Kaiser, however, went ahead.

And those are the airplane carriers, which Secretary of Navy Knox has now ballyhooed as if they were the great achievement of the Navy.
